

CUNEiform

Write Like a Sumerian!

Cuneiform is noted as the oldest form of writing, systems were developed in Mesopotamia as a method of communication. Cuneiform included a combination of pictographs, symbols representing entire words and phonograms (symbols representing a syllable or sound). Early Sumerian writing began as a pictographic system with simple pictures and symbols, which represented a whole word or idea. Sumerians developed pictures of objects and animals to represent the words for those objects and animals. Sumerian Cuneiform symbols included geometric shapes, such as triangles, circles, and lines. Later, entire words such as writing and thinking were represented with abstract symbols. This was a revolutionary development because it allowed a more sophisticated writing system to be developed. The evolution of the phonetic system of writing provided a more abstract idea, symbols represented sounds, instead of whole ideas. The symbol for water could be used to represent the word "water" because the two words sounded alike. This is the same concept as the alphabet used today. The Cuneiform system of writing developed over a period of 100 years and eventually died. Although symbols, by 3000 B.C., the Sumerians had developed a complete system of writing.

Cuneiform was used when carved into clay tablets with fluted reeds. Some tablets were used to record or they were recycled as parchment. Many of the clay tablets found by archaeologists were used as a record-keeping device for the state.
