

Let's Compare....

Legends

characters	- everyday people (might have one character with special powers) - based on 'cultural heroes' - exaggerated characters	- gods & goddesses - mortals & immortals - mythical creatures - transformation of characters into animals, etc.
setting	- often in natural setting (forest, mountain) - happened 'long ago', linked to a historical time & event with a mix of fact / fiction	- mythical lands (often based on real places from where the story originated) - happened thousands of years ago (not modern) problem	- main character (protagonist) struggles to overcome something, uses strength / brains - often several failed attempts at solving the problem - sacrifice to help others	- mortals vs. gods - protagonist struggles (because of what the antagonist is doing) - conflict results in the adventure / quest of main character ending	- explains where something came from, or how it began - protagonist becomes hero - focuses on an individual's accomplishments - often a moral & lesson	- not always a 'happy ending' (often tragic) - ending often explains why things are the way they are in our world e.g. constellations - teach a lesson other	- legends are passed down from one generation to the next, usually orally - lots of repetition (events come in 3's often) - common = gift-giving (along with sacrifice)	- personification used to explain non-living things / events - e.g. volcano → dragon - symbolic - myths include magic - passed down orally
