You Will Need:

- Brown craft paper 28 x 51 cm
- Natural leaves
- Fabric scraps in earthy tones
- Marking trays (enough for each student)
- Red sand
- Mini pine cones
- Twig chips
- Bud cones
- Pebbles (assorted)
- Thick twigs
- Natural leaves

Instructions:

1. With the class, read the book, 'Who Sank the Boat' by Pamela Allen.
2. Discuss with the students that when the animals come out of the water they will need to go somewhere safe and warm to get dry before catching a cold or becoming sick.
3. The animals will need to make their way along a familiar trail or track so they can arrive home quickly and safely. Explain to the children that they are going to create the trails for the animals.
4. Prepare some backgrounds to fit under the trays. This will be the base of the trails. Explain to the children they can use fabric in one tray and sand in another, coloured fabric in another, bark and brown paper in another.
5. Set these trays on a table surrounded with natural materials and encourage children to experiment and create a few different trails.
6. Apart from artists, discuss with the students what other signs might be made to guide the animals along the trails.
7. Photograph the work and display the trails with some sentences about the route animals will need to take to get safely home, where they can dry off. For example, 'First through the gaps around the edge of the bush and look behind the garden to a straight road, which runs right'.
