

Close Reading Lesson Plan: Tiger Rising

Lesson Objective: I can read closely to analyze and comprehend text more deeply.

Introduction to Close Reading	Display Close Reading anchor chart and explain to students they will be participating in close reading today. Use the analogy that a detective looks closely at things for clues when solving a case. Today they will be detectives as they read, looking closely at their text.
Text Introduction	Introduce and pass out the text students will be reading today, Tiger Rising Chapter 1. DO NOT introduce the text. Tell the students they will be reading the text three different times and each time looking for something different in the text.
1 st Read	Refer to the anchor chart and introduce the first Focus question: What does the text say? Hand out the recording sheet for students to record their thoughts as they read the text. Tell the students that they will specifically answer the question "What do you know about Rob?" They will be highlighting evidence from the text to support their ideas. Allow students to read the text the first time independently (supporting students that need it). Remind them to focus on the question as they read.
1 st Read Share Out	After students have finished reading and have support for their ideas about the question from the 1 st read, put the group together for a Share Out. Write "Rob" on the board and have students describe what they know about Rob. Make sure when they make a statement they can support that statement specifically with evidence from the text. You may want to have the text displayed on a smartboard or under a doc camera to refer to as you share out.
2 nd Read	Refer to anchor chart again and introduce the second Focus question: How does the text work? Tell the students that again they will be reading the text and this time specifically thinking about the question "How do particular words get us to look at the character differently in a particular way?" Do they make emotion? Encourage students to circle words and be prepared to share why they circled their chosen word(s).
2 nd Read Share Out	After students have finished reading a second time, put the group together again to share out. Have students specifically share words they circled during their second read and why they chose those words.
3 rd Read	Refer to anchor chart again and introduce the third Focus question: What does it mean? How does it connect to other text? Tell the students they will read the text a final time, and this time specifically thinking about the question "Is the tiger real? Does the tiger have a deeper meaning in the story? What about the author?" Encourage students to be prepared to share their thinking.
3 rd Read Share Out	After students have finished reading a final time, put the group together again to share out. Encourage the students to describe types of close reading the detective is doing in their own independent reading.
