Name: _____ Date: _____

Can you match each of the life processes to the correct description?

	All living things have to move. They need to move to find food, they might need to move away from predators or for lots of other reasons.
	All living things have to grow from baby babies to being adults. They grow so that they can look after themselves and eventually to reproduce.
	All living things have to eat to get energy. Animals eat other animals or plants. Plants change the light from the sun into energy through photosynthesis.
	All living things have to get rid of waste products in their bodies. This includes the gases produced through breathing and other waste, such as urine.
	All living things have to be aware of the world around them. They need to be able to see, hear, smell, feel and taste what is going on around them.
	All living things have to create new organisms that are like them in order to keep the species alive. Some animals lay eggs or give birth to young.
	All living things have to exchange gases with the atmosphere. Animals breathe in oxygen and breathe out carbon dioxide.

Under the Sea Year 3/4 Science Lessons

The 7 Life Processes

Any animal that lives in a particular place, move, eat and reproduce in that place has adapted to its environment. Underwater habitats have adapted to life under the water. For example, fish use gills to take in oxygen from the water instead of breathing through their lungs like we do. They also have fins and tails to help them swim in the water and change direction. This is called adaptation.

Can you think of any other ways in which animals who live in underwater habitats have adapted to their environments?
