

Given that, how do you choose between Type I and Type II Errors? The answer is easiest if you know that the cost (to society or the decision maker) of making one kind of error is dramatically larger than the cost of making the other. If you worked for the FDA, for example, you'd want to be very sure that you hadn't released a product that had horrible side effects. We'll discuss this dilemma for the t-test on page 144.

5.2 The t-Test

Econometricians generally use the t-test to test hypotheses about individual regression slope coefficients. Tests of more than one coefficient at a time (joint hypotheses) are typically done with the F-test, presented in Section 5.6.

The t-test is easy to use because it accounts for differences in the units of measurement of the variables and in the standard deviations of the estimated coefficients. More important, the t-statistic is the appropriate test to use when the stochastic error term is normally distributed and when the variance of that distribution must be estimated. Since these usually are the case, the use of the t-test for hypothesis testing has become standard practice in econometrics.

The t-Statistic

For a typical multiple regression equation:

$$Y_i = \beta_0 + \beta_1 X_{1i} + \beta_2 X_{2i} + \varepsilon_i \quad (5.1)$$

we can calculate t-values for each of the estimated coefficients in the equation. For reasons that will be explained in Section 7.1, t-tests are usually done only on the slope coefficients; for these, the relevant form of the t-statistic for the *k*th coefficient is

$$t_k = \frac{(\hat{\beta}_k - \beta_{H_0})}{SE(\hat{\beta}_k)} \quad (k = 1, 2, \dots, K) \quad (5.2)$$ where:

- $\hat{\beta}_k$ = the estimated regression coefficient of the *k*th variable
- β_{H_0} = the border value (usually zero) implied by the null hypothesis for β_k
- $SE(\hat{\beta}_k)$ = the estimated standard error of $\hat{\beta}_k$ (that is, the square root of the estimated variance of the distribution of the $\hat{\beta}_k$; note that there is no "hat" attached to SE because SE is already defined as an estimate)

Budgetary Forecasting in Local Government Howard A. Frank, 1993-11-23 Local governments are hard pressed to balance their budgets in the 1990s Part of any budget balancing effort is accurate forecasting In this new work Howard Frank introduces time tested forecasting techniques from the private sector and military in a local forecasting environment In a lucid user friendly treatment Frank shows how simple and complex methods can be put to use in the contemporary local government setting Through examples many of them from his own research the author delineates the strengths and weaknesses of quantitative and non quantitative forecasting methods Frank also shows how these techniques can be used to monitor changes in public programs an increasingly important part of contemporary budget execution Frank does not assume an extensive mathematical or statistical background on the part of the reader indeed a forecast neophyte will have no difficulty understanding the text Questions at the end of each chapter focus the reader on the major concepts and provide insights on practical applications within the urban setting A cornerstone of the work is that local forecasters must be intelligent experimenters with the new tools there is no canned advice that applies to all cities and forecast situations But with application of forecasting approaches treated in this unique work local budgeters and those in training to become budgeters will be able to adopt forecasting approaches that have been underutilized in local government
