Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of older adults. The study was a randomized controlled trial involving 60 participants aged 65 and older. The intervention group performed a 12-week exercise program, while the control group remained sedentary. Physical fitness was measured using a 6-minute walk test, and health-related quality of life was assessed using the SF-36 questionnaire. The results showed that the intervention group had significantly higher scores on the 6-minute walk test and the SF-36 questionnaire compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can improve physical fitness and health-related quality of life in older adults.
