Quantum Transport (Crystal Plate Movement)

Background:

Plasma technology has been developed through the 1980s. According to the theory, the most efficient plasma is composed of gases that move under the influence of the electric and magnetic fields of plasma. However, this model is not accurate enough, which is not properly composed of small and large, lighter and heavier particles, which are composed of different kinds of particles.

Movement of the Plasma plate over the Plasma that Spins

This new technology is based on the fact that the movement of the plasma is not only affected by the electric and magnetic fields, but also by the movement of the plasma particles. The movement of the plasma particles is determined by the interaction between the plasma particles and the plasma particles, which is not properly composed of small and large, lighter and heavier particles, which are composed of different kinds of particles.
