No Film in My Camera Bill Gibson, 2000 Why would you purposefully shoot scenes with no film in your camera To find the answer you will need to read this memoir in which internationally known Director Cameraman Bill Gibson recounts some of his most exciting assignments of the past six decades His career as a combat cameraman propelled him through World War II with the Navy the Korean Conflict with the Air Force and to Vietnam as a civilian on assignment with the U S Marines His stories begin with the harrowing retelling of a kamikaze and torpedo attack against the USS Hornet the Aircraft Carrier that brought the Doolittle Raiders within striking distance of the Japanese homeland and continue through time and across space taking the reader on a rollicking ride through history as told through one man's camera Gibson offers up riots in Indonesia uprisings in Africa and coverage of world leaders that reads like a twentieth century who's who FDR Harry Truman Gen Douglas MacArthur Charles Lindbergh Albert Schweitzer DeGaulle John F Kennedy Reagan and many others He also provides insights into the frustrations and triumphs of America's space program from his vantage point as a consultant to NASA on the photographic coverage of Apollo 11 In No Film in My Camera Gibson brings all of these scenes to life not only with his photography but also with detail and emotion Bombing to Surrender Philip A. Smith, 1998 Major Smith examines the contribution of airpower to the 1943 collapse of Italy His study is largely about competing airpower strategies during World War II He presents his own view of this 50 year old debate Major Smith does not offer another absolute ruling nor does he represent a bias toward one form of employing airpower over another but his study attempts to document an important exception to the most current panacea target He cites several broad works Robert A Pape's Bombing to Win Airpower and Coercion in War the United States Bombing Survey Reports Ernest R May's Lessons of the Past The Use and

Misuse of History in American Foreign Policy and Frederick William Deakin's The Brutal Friendship Mussolini Hitler and the Fall of Italian Fascism to identify examples where the psychological effects of airpower outweighed the physical damage caused by bombing
