

Plan for A453 programming project 3

Task 1

Introduction:

There are three tasks within material three. In the first task we are to create a troubleshooting program in which the user is to respond to a series of questions that lead to a solution or advice. For task two we are to add on to that program with an automated program that identifies certain keywords in the customer's query to provide potential solutions to the query. For task three we need to program to identify the device and load the correct troubleshooting routine before analysing the program.

Analyse the requirements for this system and design, develop, test and evaluate a program to interrogate the user about the nature of the device and the problem, leading to a solution or advice to call the supplier. You will need to create a suitable troubleshooting tree for a mobile device. This should be a demonstration version of the system with at least 10 possible outcomes, but need not include an exhaustive list of potential problems or outcomes.

The most important parts are that it has to have at least ten possible outcomes and that it has to be a suitable troubleshooting tree for a mobile device and finally that it could have a loop.

My task in this assessment is to analyse the requirements for this system and design, develop, test and evaluate a program to interrogate the user about the nature of the device and the problem, leading to a solution or advice to call the supplier. My program must have at least ten outcomes and a suitable troubleshooting tree for a mobile device.

I think that this is asking me to make a program that simply asks questions to a user who has a problem and it has to end with what happened to the device if it is water damage or a virus it must have an answer.

Analysis:

For task one this program should give questions to the user and the user will respond to these questions.

For task two this program should identify keywords from the statement or question from the user and then respond with the correct advice.

For task three this program should ask which phone the user wants to be fixed and according to that answer it will undergo the correct procedure for the given phone.
