9708 ECONOMICS

Paper 2 (Data Response and Essay – Core).
maximum raw mark 40

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2013 series for most IGCSE, GCE Advanced Level and Advanced Subsidiary Level components and some Ordinary Level components.

Integration in Africa Richard E. Mshomba,2017-10-12 This book offers an in depth analysis of economic integration in Africa with a focus on the East African Community EAC On Unemployment Mark R. Reiff,2015-10-07 With unemployment at historically high rates that show signs of becoming structural there is a pressing need for an in depth exploration of this economic injustice Unemployment is one of the problems most likely to put critical pressure on our political institutions disrupt the social fabric of our way of life and even threaten the continuation of liberalism itself Despite the obvious importance of the problem of unemployment however there has been a curious lack of attention paid to this issue by contemporary non Marxist political philosophers On Unemployment explores the moral implications of the problem of unemployment despite the continuing uncertainty involving both its causes and its cures Reiff takes up a series of questions about the nature of unemployment and what justice has to tell us about what we should do if anything to alleviate it The book comprehensively discusses the related theory and suggests how we might implement these more general observations in the real world It addresses the politics of unemployment and the extent to which opposition to some or all of the book s various proposals stem not from empirical disagreements about the best solutions but from more basic moral disagreements about whether the reduction of unemployment is indeed an appropriate moral goal This exciting new text will be essential for scholars and readers across business economics and finance as well as politics philosophy and sociology Urban

Capital Failure Nicholas Morris,David Vines,2014-08-07 Adam Smith s invisible hand relied on the self interest of individuals to produce good outcomes Economists belief in efficient markets took this idea further by assuming that all individuals are selfish This belief underpinned financial deregulation and the theories on incentives and performance which supported it However although Adam Smith argued that although individuals may be self interested he argued that they also have other regarding motivations including a desire for the approbation of others This book argues that the trust intensive nature of financial services makes it essential to cultivate such other regarding motivations and it provides proposals on how this might be done Trustworthiness in the financial services industry was eroded by deregulation and by the changes to industry structure which followed Incentive structures encouraged managers to disguise risky products as yielding high returns and regulation failed to curb this risk taking rent seeking behaviour The book makes a number of proposals for reforms of governance and of legal and regulatory arrangements to address these issues The proposals seek to harness values and norms that would reinforce other regarding behaviour so that the firms and individuals in the financial services act in a more trustworthy manner Four requirements are identified which together might secure more strongly trustworthy behaviour the definition of obligations the identification of responsibilities the creation of mechanisms which encourage trustworthiness and the holding to account of those involved in an appropriate manner Financial reforms at present lack sufficient focus on these requirements and the book proposes a range of further actions for specific parts of the financial industry Integrating Human Health into Urban and Transport Planning Mark

Nieuwenhuijsen, Haneen Khreis, 2018-07-13 This volume brings together the world's leading experts on urban and transport planning environmental exposures physical activity health and health impact assessment to discuss challenges and solutions in cities The book provides a conceptual framework and work program for actions and outlines future research needs It presents the current evidence base the benefits of and numerous case studies on integrating health and the environment into urban development and transport planning Within cities there is a considerable variation in the levels of environmental exposures such as ambient air pollution noise and temperature green space availability and physical activity Many of these exposures and their adverse health impacts are related to and are being exacerbated by urban and transport planning and policy Emerging research suggests that urban and transport planning indicators such as road network distance to major roads traffic density household density industry and natural and green space can explain a large proportion of the variability in environmental exposures and therefore represent important and highly modifiable factors The urban environment is a complex interlinked system Decision makers need not only better data on the complexity of factors in environmental and developmental processes affecting human health but also an enhanced understanding of the linkages between these factors and health effects to determine at which level to target their actions most effectively In recent years there also has been a shift from trying to change at the national level to more comprehensive and ambitious actions being developed and implemented at the regional and local levels Cities have come to the forefront of providing solutions for environmental issues such as climate change which has co benefits for health but yet need better knowledge for wider health centric action This book provides the latest and most up to date information and studies for academics and practitioners alike Pakistan International Monetary Fund.
