Documents in the Workplace Denis Alamargot,Patrice Terrier,Jean-Marie Cellier,2008-01-09 Divided into three parts the first of which provides a linguistic definition of professional documents describing their different types and genres This definition necessarily takes into account both the formal characteristics of these types of document e g nature of linguistic units involved and their functional goals the way these linguistic units are used to fulfill the text s communicative aim The second part focuses on the mental mechanisms involved in written production in the workplace One of the aims of a professional writer is to compose a text which can be understood Text composition involves specific processes and strategies that can be enhanced One way of doing this is to give the writer suitable instructions while another is to provide him her with a suitable writing environment This last aspect leads us to devote the third and final section to the comprehension of written documents in the workplace Awareness of the strategies implemented by different readers with more or less domain expertise in order to understand technical and professional documents can enhance the latter s readability Contributions from linguists psychologists and ergonomists from various countries ensure international scope and comprehensiveness

 Bridges the gap between fundamental research into writing and reading and the issue of the efficiency of written communication in the workplace Enables better content creation for professional writers Pleadings, Minutes of Public Sitzings and Documents / Mémoires, procès-verbaux des audiences publiques et documents, Volume 19 (2013)

Language Evaluation Forum CLEF for European languages was held from January to September 2001. This campaign proved a great success and showed an increase in participation of around 70% compared with CLEF 2000. It culminated in a two day workshop in Darmstadt, Germany, 3-4 September, in conjunction with the 5th European Conference on Digital Libraries (ECDL 2001). On the first day of the workshop the results of the CLEF 2001 evaluation campaign were reported and discussed in paper and poster sessions. The second day focused on the current needs of cross language systems and how evaluation campaigns in the future can best be designed to stimulate progress. The workshop was attended by nearly 50 researchers and system developers from both academia and industry. It provided an important opportunity for researchers working in the same area to get together and exchange ideas and experiences. Copies of all the presentations are available on the CLEF web site at <http://www.clef-campaign.org>. This volume contains thoroughly revised and expanded versions of the papers presented at the workshop and provides an exhaustive record of the CLEF 2001 campaign. CLEF 2001 was conducted as an activity of the DELOS Network of Excellence for Digital Libraries funded by the EC Information Society Technologies program to further research in digital library technologies. The activity was organized in collaboration with the US National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST).
