QUESTION 3

- 3.1 Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Peat lands are special wetlands that play a very important role in ecology. A peat land, of approximately 6 000 years old, near Mafeking is almost destroyed because of excessive extraction of water from the nearby Molopo river. The water is extracted for human consumption.

Peat lands like the one near Mafeking is exceptional and play an important role in storing water as well as preventing climate changes.

Dr Phil-Louis Grundling said that carbon that is 'held' or 'stored' by peat lands combats climate change because it decreases the amount of carbon in the atmosphere.

Peat lands trap about one third of the world's carbon. Approximately 50% of wetlands worldwide are peat lands. However in South Africa about 10% of the wetlands are peat lands.

Grundling explained that peat lands can hold about 1 000 times its own mass in water. This replenishes the water table and is the source that keeps streams flowing. The "sponge effect" of the peat also makes it possible to store water that is then released during dry seasons.

Dr Grundling said that it might be too late to restore the peat land near Mafeking but it might be possible to restore some parts of it if more water is supplied to this peat land.

The result of this destruction is depletion of the water table. The habitat of numerous fish and frog species that lived in this peat land was also destroyed.

From: Beeld: 24 September 2016.

- 3.1.1 Give TWO other reasons (not mentioned in the passage) that can lead to the destruction of wetlands. (2)
- 3.1.2 Discuss reasons from the passage regarding the importance of these specific wetlands for the environment. (4)
- 3.1.3 Suggest a way in which this peat land near Mafeking can be restored. (2)

Public-private partnerships and the reduction of undernutrition in developing countries Hoddinott, John F., Gillespie, Stuart, Yosef, Sivan, 2015-12-09 This paper brings structure to the discussion of private sector engagement in nutrition by clarifying different models of engagement reviews the evidence base on public private partnerships PPPs for the reduction of undernutrition and outlines some potential ways forward We find that there are few independent rigorous assessments of the impact of commercial sector engagement in nutrition. Considerable caution is thus warranted when assessing PPPs in nutrition. Looking forward, future progress requires that the private sector recognize that past and current actions by some firms have created an environment of mistrust. It requires that the public sector accept that sustainable PPPs are those which permit private firms to generate profits. There is significant scope for the private sector to drive innovations that could reduce undernutrition and more speculatively there may be scope for the private sector to act as a financier. Underpinning all these efforts must lie open discussions of the objectives, roles and expectations of all parties along with potential conflicts of interest, an open space or platform where issues and challenges can be discussed and addressed, incentives for the private sector to take on pro nutrition roles, strong transparent and well enforced monitoring processes and serious independent evaluations of these activities.

Data Assimilation and Control: Theory and Applications in Life Sciences, Axel Hutt, Wilhelm Stannat, Roland Potthast, 2019-08-16. The understanding of complex systems is a key element to predict and control the system's dynamics. To gain deeper insights into the underlying actions of complex systems, today more and more data of diverse types are analyzed that mirror the systems dynamics, whereas system models are still hard to derive. Data assimilation merges both data and model to an optimal description of complex systems dynamics. The present eBook brings together both recent theoretical work in data assimilation and control and demonstrates applications in diverse research fields.
