Klug,2012-11-28 The majority of American Indian students attend public schools in the United States However education mandated for American Indian students since the 1800s has been primarily education for assimilation with the goal of eliminating American Indian cultures and languages Indeed extreme measures were taken to ensure Native students would act white as a result of their involvement with Western education Today s educational mandates continue a hegemonic one size fits all approach to education This is in spite of evidence that these approaches have rarely worked for Native students and have been extremely detrimental to Native communities This book provides information about the importance of teaching American Indian students by bridging home and schools using students cultural capital as a springboard for academic success Culturally Responsive Pedagogy is explored from its earliest beginnings following the 1928 Meriam Report Successful education of Native students depends on all involved and respect for the voices of American Indians in calling for education that holds high expectations for native students and allows them to be grounded in their cultures and languages Teaching about Native Americans Karen D. Harvey,1997 The Native American ,1928 Native American Arts and Cultures Ellen L. Kronowitz,2000 Concepts and Trends in Global Education ERIC Clearinghouse for Social Studies/Social Science Education, Bloomington, IN.,2001 This publication addresses trends and issues in global education providing information about what global education is and how to teach it The publication emphasizes ERIC resources It offers ERIC Digests about global education and selected items from the ERIC database that exemplify different viewpoints and approaches to global education It contains a directory of key organizations and World Wide Web sites that provide teacher resources Designed as a guide for educators who want to include global education across the various subjects of the curriculum the volume is divided into four parts 1 Overview of Global and International Education 2 Institutionalizing Global Education 3 Curriculum Methods and Approaches and 4 Appendices Information about documents in the ERIC database and how to submit documents for the database is appended BT

Teaching Critically About Lewis and Clark Alison Schmitke, Leilani Sabzalian, Jeff Edmundson, 2020 The Lewis and Clark Corps of Discovery is often presented as an exciting adventure story of discovery friendship and patriotism However this same period in U S history can be understood quite differently when viewed through anticolonial lens and the Doctrine of Discovery How might educators critically interrogate the assumptions that underlie this adventure story through their teaching This book challenges dominant narratives and packaged curriculum about Lewis and Clark to support more responsible social studies instruction The authors provide a conceptual framework ready to use lesson plans and teaching resources to address oversimplified versions of the Lewis and Clark expedition Indigenous perspectives along with contemporary issues are embedded in each lesson to encourage active and critical engagement with history and the legacies of conquest those living in what is now called the United States have inherited Book Features Offers a new look at social studies curriculum about the Corps of Discovery and Manifest Destiny through the Doctrine of Discovery Includes examples of how Indigenous peoples have long engaged in philosophical legal and political challenges to the principles of the Doctrine Provides social studies lesson plans for elementary and secondary classrooms Offers useful curriculum materials to help teachers present a deeper examination of this topic

Improving Working Memory in Learning and Intellectual Disabilities Silvia Lanfranchi, Barbara Carretti, 2016-08-05 The last forty years of research have demonstrated that working memory WM is a key concept for understanding higher order cognition To give an example WM is involved in reading comprehension problem solving and reasoning but also in a number of everyday life activities It has a clear role in the case of atypical development too For instance numerous studies have shown an impairment in WM in individuals with learning disabilities LD or intellectual disabilities ID and several researchers have hypothesized that this can be linked to their difficulties in learning cognition and everyday life The latest challenge in the field concerns the trainability of WM If it is a construct central to our understanding of cognition in typical and atypical development then specific intervention to sustain WM performance might also promote changes in cognitive processes associated with WM The idea that WM can be modified is debated however partly because of the theoretical implications of this view and partly due to the generally contradictory results obtained so far In fact most studies converge in demonstrating specific effects of WM training i e improvements in the trained tasks but few transfer effects to allied cognitive processes are generally reported It is worth noting that any maintenance effects when investigated are even more meagre In addition a number of methodological concerns have been raised in relation to the use of 1 single tasks to assess the effects of a training program 2 WM tasks differing from those used in the training to assess the effects of WM training and 3 passive control groups These and other crucial issues have so far prevented any conclusions from being drawn on the efficacy of WM training Bearing in mind that the opportunity to train WM could have a huge impact in the educational and clinical settings it seems fundamentally important to shed more light on the limits and potential of this line of research The aim of the research discussed here is to generate new evidence on the feasibility of training WM in individuals with LD and ID There are several questions that could be raised in this field For a start can WM be trained in this population Are there some aspects of WM that can be trained more easily than others Can a WM training reduce the impact of LD and ID on learning outcomes and on everyday living What kind of training program is best suited to the promotion of such changes
