Princeton Alumni Weekly, 1921      Building Sentence Skills Brian Backman, 2003-01-15 Teaching sentence structure with writing topics      Working-Class Kids and Visionary Educators in a Multiracial High School Karen V. Hansen, 2024-10-15

In the 1960s and 1970s when many communities resisted school integration and schools held low expectations for working class kids and constricted teachers autonomy educators and students at a multiracial public high school in California collaborated to achieve something remarkable they created a cohesive community that gave students a powerful sense of belonging Over its 25 year life the student leaders of Sunnyvale High School worked with visionary staff to reduce violence broaden and enrich the curriculum to include US Black history and Mexican American literature and increase girls access to sports Working together they fostered a collective sense of pride persistence and possibility that fed the success of students and graduates in careers and in communities How did adults and youth forge such a powerful ethos of engagement and mutual responsibility enabling so many to thrive At a time when issues of racial and gender inequality are arguably as heated as they were half a century ago what lessons does the school offer In this book the story of Sunnyvale High School is told by the students and educators who shaped it and made it meaningful They attest to the lifelong impact of their shared experience

The Alumni Quarterly and Fortnightly Notes of the University of Illinois, 1918      The Alumni Quarterly and Fortnightly Notes, 1917      Working the Past Charlotte Linde, 2009 Stories told within institutions play a powerful role helping to define not only the institution itself but also its individual members How do institutions use stories How do those stories both preserve the past and shape the future To what extent does narrative construct both collective and individual identity Charlotte Linde s unique and far reaching study addresses these questions by looking at the interplay of narratives memory and identity in a large insurance company Her detailed ethnography looks at the role of stories within the institution and how they are employed by its members in both private and group settings Analyzing the re telling of certain key stories she shows how the formation of core stories and their multiple re tellings and modifications provide a means of formulating and promoting a cohesive group identity which in turn shapes the stories and identities of the individuals within the collective Linde also looks at silences and how stories not told also convey their version of the past Working the Past shows how stories that might otherwise be seen as part of mundane daily life are in fact utterly essential to the formation and maintenance of individual and group identity Her original research will appeal to those interested in narrative studies linguistics anthropology sociology and institutional memory

Heritage Political & Americana Auction #685,      Yale Alumni Weekly, 1909      The Yale Alumni Weekly, 1925      Normal Instructor and Teachers World, 1928

Reading and Writing the World with Mathematics Eric Gutstein, 2012-09-10 Mathematics education in the United States can reproduce social inequalities whether schools use either basic skills curricula to prepare mainly low income students of color for low skilled service jobs or standards based curricula to ready students for knowledge intensive positions And working for fundamental social change and rectifying injustice are rarely included in any mathematics curriculum Reading and Writing the World with Mathematics argues that mathematics education should prepare students to investigate and critique injustice and to challenge in words and actions oppressive structures and acts Based on teacher research the book provides a theoretical framework and practical examples for how mathematics educators can connect schooling to a larger sociopolitical context and concretely teach mathematics for social justice

After Pomp and Circumstance Vered Vinitzky-Seroussi, 1998-06-08 Menacing nerve racking uncomfortably intrusive the high school reunion has become a dreaded encounter with past and present for many Americans It is a moment of both heightened self awareness and public presentation insisting that we account for ourselves not merely to our own satisfaction but to the satisfaction of others as well For sociologist Vinitzky Seroussi the high school reunion presents an ideal forum in which to explore the ongoing construction of identity in American society and perhaps to ascertain just how we have managed to make sense of our lives from then to now As autobiographical occasions reunions prompt us to examine our own life narratives the stories we tell ourselves about who we are and how we have come to be that person But at the same time they can threaten the integrity of those very stories subjecting them to the scrutiny of others whose memories of the past and ourselves may be altogether different from our own Reunions then engender a fragile community held together by the resources of a shared past yet imperiled by the tensions of competing histories Inevitably for both those who attend and those who choose not to the reunion forces a kind of biographical confrontation an unavoidable and often pivotal engagement between a carefully constructed personal identity and the socially prevalent standards of success and accomplishment Though many see in today's culture the gradual demise of personal identity Vinitzky Seroussi's carefully researched study reveals something quite different After Pomp and Circumstance explores a struggle we all experience the desire to resolve the tension between public conceptions and internal understandings to maintain a sense of continuity between past and present lives and to lay claim to both an integrated self and a unified life history
