Professor Decker tests the formula he created using the chemical on Konga which made him grow and change into a chimp and later a gorilla. The formula has a side effect that allows Konga to read minds and thinking his master wants Dean Foster a critic of Decker's work dead. Konga escapes and kills the man. Konga then kills Tagore an Indian scientist who has achieved success in the same field as Decker and was going public first. Finally Konga decides to go after Bob a student who caused the professor's assistant Sandra to quit after he proposed to her. However Decker and his wife Margret realize what has happened and go to stop Konga but the ape has now grown to gigantic size and goes on a rampage through London. The Deckers are killed in the chaos and the military shoots Konga down. When he died he reverted to his original simian state. Bob and Sandra look on in horror and mourn the loss of their mentor.
