New Directions in Applied Mathematics P.J. Hilton,G.S. Young,2012-12-06 It is close enough to the end of the century to make a guess as to what the Encyclopedia Britannica article on the history of mathematics will report in 2582 We have said that the dominating theme of the Nineteenth Century was the development and application of the theory of functions of one variable At the beginning of the Twentieth Century mathematicians turned optimistically to the study of functions of several variables But wholly unexpected difficulties were met new phenomena were discovered and new fields of mathematics sprung up to study and master them As a result except where development of methods from earlier centuries

continued there was a recoil from applications Most of the best mathematicians of the first two thirds of the century devoted their efforts entirely to pure mathematics In the last third however the powerful methods devised by then for higher dimensional problems were turned onto applications and the tools of applied mathematics were drastically changed By the end of the century the temporary overemphasis on pure mathematics was completely gone and the traditional interconnections between pure mathematics and applications restored This century also saw the first primitive beginnings of the electronic calculator whose development in the next century led to our modern methods of handling mathematics
