Kimmel,2005-03-23 This volume brings a variety of perspectives to bear on the issue of how higher education institutions can or should choose students during the early part of the 21st century Many of the contributors report on research to develop and validate potential tools to assist those responsible for admission decisions Other contributors however pose broader questions about the nature of selective admissions about institutional responses to the changing demography of those seeking to enter higher education or about the appropriate criteria of success in higher education The volume is particularly timely because the question of how changes in admission tools and processes will affect campus diversity following the recent Supreme Court decision concerning the University of Michigan Diversity is an important concern of all of the contributors and the chapter by Lee Bollinger President at Michigan at the time the court cases were filed is particularly relevant This book brings together the research that underlies a variety of proposed approaches to improving the selection of students Providing support for the integrity of the admissions process and the validity of new tools to help a higher education institution to select a diverse student body this book explores the implications of the assessment component of K 12 school reform for higher education admissions practices The diverse contributions to this volume reflect the current ferment in educational research and educational practice as institutions of higher education seek to develop a new admissions paradigm for coming decades following the University of Michigan decisions This book is intended for those leaders and professionals who set admission policies and practices in American colleges and graduate and professional schools as well as for those scholars and scientists who research develop and validate tools for use in the process of choosing students in ways that are congruent with an institution s mission values and goals College Admissions for the 21st Century Robert J. Sternberg,2010-10-01 SATs ACTs GPAs Everyone knows that these scores can t tell a college everything that s important about an applicant But what else should admissions officers look for and how can they know it when they see it In College Admissions for the 21st Century a leading researcher on intelligence and creativity offers a bold and practical approach to college admissions testing Standardized tests are measures of memory and analytical skills But the ever changing global society beyond a college campus needs more than just those qualities argues Robert Sternberg Tomorrow s leaders and citizens also need creativity practicality and wisdom How can the potential for those complex qualities be measured One answer is Kaleidoscope a new initiative in undergraduate admissions first used at Tufts University Its open ended questions for applicants and the means used to score the answers gives applicants and admissions officers the chance to go beyond standardized tests Does it work As Sternberg describes in detail Kaleidoscope measures predicted first year academic success over and above SATs and high school GPAs and predicted first year extracurricular activities leadership and active citizenship as well And every year that Kaleidoscope measures were used the entering class s average SATs and high school GPAs went up too What worked at Tufts can work elsewhere New kinds of assessments like Kaleidoscope can liberate many colleges and students from the narrowness of standardized tests and inspire new approaches to teaching for new kinds of talented motivated citizens of the world
