

Meet the 22-year-old with a big idea for cleaning up the Great Pacific Garbage Patch.

One young ocean lover is confronting this challenge head on. At just 22, Boyan Slat has created a barrier system that's designed to collect and remove trash from the Pacific Ocean without disrupting marine life. A Dutch inventor and entrepreneur, Slat is the founder and CEO of The Ocean Cleanup, a foundation dedicated to developing advanced technologies to rid the oceans of pollution. When he was 16, Slat came up with the ambitious idea to clean up the oceans while he was diving in Greece and came across more plastic bags than fish. In the years since that dive he's dedicated countless hours to the project. "I really think the only way to show that it can be done is to go out there and try it," he says.

Franklin, 2021-03-23 The World Health Organization recognizes that injuries are the leading cause of death and disability to children after their first birthday There is also high morbidity associated with injuries sustained in childhood often affecting people for the rest of their lives For every child who dies from injury there are several thousand who require medical care many who live with varying degrees of disability Children and adolescents 0 19 years of age are at increased risk of mortality and morbidity due to injuries such as road traffic burns falls poisoning drowning self harm and interpersonal violence There are proven ways to prevent many child injuries yet there are still gaps in our knowledge By understanding the impact of determinants of health i e the social and economic environment the physical environment and a person's individual characteristics and behaviors effective prevention interventions can be designed and implemented with a high return on investment This Special Issue covers an eclectic range of studies the common goal of which is to reduce the global burden of child injury related mortality and morbidity The Global Testing Culture William C. Smith, 2016-01-04 The past thirty years have seen a rapid expansion of testing exposing students worldwide to tests that are now more than ever standardized and linked to high stakes outcomes The use of testing as a policy tool has been legitimized within international educational development to measure education quality in the vast majority of countries worldwide The embedded nature and normative power of high stakes standardized testing across national contexts can be understood as a global testing culture The global testing culture permeates all aspects of education from financing to parental involvement to teacher and student beliefs and practices The reinforcing nature of the global testing culture leads to an environment where testing becomes synonymous with accountability which becomes synonymous with education quality Underlying the global testing culture is a set of values identified from the increasing literature on world culture These include education as a human right academic intelligence faith in science decentralization and neoliberalism Each of these values highlights different aspects of the dialogue in support of high stakes standardized testing The wide approval of these values and their ability to legitimate various aspects of high stakes testing reinforces the taken for granted notion that such tests are effective and appropriate education practices However a large body of literature emphasizes the negative unintended consequences teaching to the test reshaping the testing pool the inequitable distribution of school resources and teachers attention and reconstructing the role of the student teacher and parent commonly found when standardized census based tests are combined with high stakes outcomes for educators or students This book problematizes this culture by providing critical perspectives that challenge the assumptions of the culture and describe how the culture manifests in national contexts The volume makes it clear that testing per se is not the problem Instead it is how tests are administered used or misused and linked to accountability that provide the global testing culture with its powerful ability to shape schools and society and lead to its unintended undesirable consequences

Accountability in education: meeting our commitments UNESCO, 2017-10-30 The second edition of the Global Education Monitoring Report GEM Report presents the latest evidence on global progress towards the education targets of the UN Sustainable Development Goals With hundreds of millions of people still not going to school and many not achieving minimum skills at school it is clear education systems are off track to achieve global goals The marginalized currently bear the most consequences but also stand to benefit the most if policy makers pay sufficient attention to their needs Faced with these challenges along with tight budgets and increased emphasis on results oriented value for money countries are searching for solutions Increased accountability often tops the list The 2017 8 GEM Report shows the entire array of approaches to accountability in education It ranges from countries unused to the concept where violations of the right to education go unchallenged to countries where accountability has become an end in itself instead of a means to inclusive equitable and high quality education and lifelong learning for all The report emphasizes that education is a shared responsibility While governments have primary responsibility all actors schools teachers parents students international organizations private sector providers civil society and the media 0 3 have a role in improving education systems The report emphasized the importance of transparency and availability of information but urges caution in how data are used It makes the case for avoiding accountability systems with a disproportionate focus on narrowly defined results and punitive sanctions In an era of multiple accountability tools the report provides clear evidence on those that are working and those that are not Back cover
