

The background of the cover is a composite image. The top half shows a German Jagdpanther tank in a snowy, open field. The tank is angled towards the right, and its long 88mm anti-aircraft gun is firing a shell, which is captured mid-air with a large, bright orange and yellow explosion. In the background, there are some bare trees and a small red-roofed building. The bottom half of the image shows a Soviet SU-100 tank in a muddy, brown field. The tank is angled towards the left, and its main gun is pointed forward. The overall scene suggests a direct confrontation between the two tanks.

Jagdpanther Vs Sueastern Front:

Jagdpanther vs SU-100 David R. Higgins, 2014-04-22 The culmination of big gun German and Soviet tank destroyer design can be found in their clashes in Hungary in the spring of 1945 As World War II in Europe reached its end armor development and doctrine had experienced several years of massively accelerated change especially within the crucible of the Eastern Front The German Jagdpanther and Soviet SU 100 both turretless tank destroyer designs based on a traditional turret tank chassis were the culminating examples of how the progression of experience resources and time constraints produced vehicles that were well suited for roles of defence and offence respectively The Jagdpanther represented a well balanced solution and an excellent use of limited resources while the SU 100 was a natural progression of the rudimentary but numerous SU 85 As the role of tanks broadened from essentially infantry support to anti tank armor thickness and armament increased to enable AFVs better to survive such encounters Expensive and hard to upgrade with larger armament owing to the constraints imposed by turret ring size and suspension turreted tanks gave way in some contexts to new designs The Soviets and the Germans alike found that more powerful guns could be installed directly into the hull which in turn reduced the vehicle s silhouette and allowed for increased armour protection for the weight A rapid arms race resulted in the East with each side attempting to develop a battlefield edge if only for a limited time For the Germans the 8 8cm armed Jagdpanther was intended for more defensive roles such as ambushing or flank protection at long range where its superior sights and high velocity rounds imparted an advantage Its sloped armor and relatively light weight meant unlike the more massive and less practical Jagdtiger a Tiger II derivative it could also operate in a more mobile capacity Its superior optics offered key firepower advantages but its origins in the overengineered Panther design meant it was susceptible to breakdown and mechanical problems In contrast the closest Soviet equivalent the SU 100 was designed to operate alongside armor and mechanized forces in an offensive capacity where its 100mm main gun would help counter heavier enemy armour when encountered Although its speed and armour protection were comparable the greater numbers fielded late in the war often proved decisive against an adversary increasingly forced to fight despite inadequate logistics and training By this stage of the conflict the Germans were forced to adopt ad hoc battle groups to coordinate their decimated parent formations assets The Soviets in turn possessed operational momentum and were perhaps less concerned with tactical losses in part as immobilized vehicles could be more easily recovered and reintroduced into combat

Jagdpanther vs SU-100 David R. Higgins, 2014-04-20 Featuring specially commissioned full colour artwork this engaging study casts new light on the background and details of this clash between two turretless tank destroyers as the two sides contested Hungary s vital oil resources in March 1945 As World War II in Europe reached its end armour development and doctrine had experienced several years of massively accelerated change especially within the crucible of the Eastern Front The German Jagdpanther and Soviet SU 100 both turretless tank destroyer designs based on a traditional turret tank chassis were the culminating examples of how the progression of experience resources and time constraints produced vehicles that were well suited for roles of defence and offence respectively As this compact book details the Jagdpanther represented a well balanced solution and an excellent use of limited resources while the SU 100 was a natural progression of the SU 85 where numbers produced compensated for rudimentary construction poor crew comfort and limited optics Jagdpanther vs 17-pdr Achilles Frank Baldwin,2025-06-19 This is the story of the 17 pdr Achilles and the Jagdpanther two formidable tracked anti tank guns that clashed in North West Europe during 1944 45 Both mounting their country s most effective anti tank ordnance on a tracked chassis the 17 pdr Achilles and the Jagdpanther were arguably the best self propelled anti tank guns used by the British Canadian and German forces that fought in North West Europe during 1944 45 Featuring specially commissioned artwork and carefully chosen photographs this is the story of the two types development combat use and legacy in the closing stages of World War II in North West Europe Based upon the mobile lightly armoured M10 design originally developed for the US Army the Achilles had its main armament the 17 pounder QF anti tank gun mounted in a fully revolving turret Conversely the low profile heavily armoured Jagdpanther had its formidable 8 8cm PaK 43 cannon mounted in a fixed casemate Both crewed by artillerymen rather than tankers the Achilles and the Jagdpanther were anti tank guns not tanks or assault guns their main purpose was to knock out enemy tanks not to engage infantry or lead an assault or pursuit Sometimes they faced each other notably in the Reichswald fighting of February 1945 Fully illustrated this work tells the story of their development and tactical use as well as what happened when these two very different designs met in combat Soviet Tanks in Manchuria 1945 William E. Hiestand,2023-03-16 A new illustrated study of the devastating but little known Soviet armored blitzkrieg against the Japanese in the last weeks of World War II and how it influenced Soviet tank doctrine as the Cold War dawned Although long overshadowed in the West by the dropping of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki the USSR s lightning strike into Manchuria in August 1945 was one of the most successful and unique campaigns of the era Soviet forces led by over 5 500 tanks and self propelled guns attacked across huge distances and deserts marshes and mountains to smash Japan s million strong Kwantung Army in a matter of days Japanese forces were short of training and equipment but nevertheless fought fiercely inflicting 32 000 casualties on the Soviets Red Army operations were characterized by surprise speed and deep penetrations by tank heavy forces born of the brutal lessons they had learned during years fighting the Wehrmacht Lessons from the campaign directly shaped Soviet Cold War force structure and planning for mechanized operations against the West Illustrated with contemporary artwork and rare photos from one of the best collections of Soviet military photos in the West this fascinating book explains exactly how the last blitzkrieg of World War II was planned fought and won and how it influenced the Red Army s plans for tank warfare against NATO in Europe Ju 87D/G STUKA versus T-34 Robert Forsyth,2023-09-28 An examination of two of the most high profile air and land weapons to be deployed on the Eastern Front in World War II In late 1942 as part of its attempts to strike back at ever increasing numbers of Soviet tanks the German air ministry authorised the development of an adaptation and enhancement of the longspan Junkers Ju 87D 5 Stuka dive bomber The aircraft was duly fitted with two underwing pods containing 37 mm BK cannon an anti-aircraft cannon with its origins dating back to 1933 The solid slow Ju 87 airframe offered the Luftwaffe an ideal platform for specialist low level tank killing operations Despite the wealth of experience possessed by some of the Luftwaffe's ground attack and dive bomber aces knocking out T 34 tanks from the air was a demanding and difficult process Nevertheless some Luftwaffe pilots notched up impressive tank scores and the Ju 87 is credited with the destruction of more than 100 tanks across the central and southern sectors of the Eastern Front including during the Battle of Kursk Including personal accounts from Stuka pilots and biographies of the anti tank aces together with detailed photographs of the cannon installation into the Ju 87G and details of the construction of the T 34 illustrated using specially commissioned artwork this book covers the epic clash of two legendary machines of World War II

Bazooka vs Panzer Steven J. Zaloga, 2016-11-17 World War II saw tanks assume a dominant role in warfare capable of tearing through the enemy lines if left unchecked To combat the threat posed by these armoured behemoths the United States developed the M1 Anti Tank Rocket Launcher better known as the Bazooka First employed in combat during 1942 the weapon required a great deal of skill and courage to use effectively By late 1944 it was a mainstay of the US infantry's anti tank capabilities alongside towed weapons anti tank grenades and other longer established measures Focusing on the savage close quarters fighting between Germany's armoured divisions and the US infantry during the Battle of the Bulge Steven Zaloga's absorbing study compares and assesses the strengths and limitations of the cutting edge technology used by both sides Featuring specially commissioned full colour artwork and explosive battle reports this volume casts new light on the evolving nature of infantry versus tank combat in the closing months of World War II

Foreign Panthers Thomas Seignon, Merlin Robinson, 2022-11-24 A study of the little known career of Germany's Panther perhaps the greatest tank of World War II in foreign hands both during and after the war The Panther was arguably the most successful medium tank design of World War II demonstrated by the number of Germany's enemies that used them after and even during the war While some were used by the Western Allies the Russians used the greatest number of captured Panthers against Nazi Germany though they did not find much favour thanks to their mechanical unreliability and difficulty in acquiring spare parts After the war they were mostly passed on to satellite states such as Bulgaria and Romania The French army also used them in significant numbers after the war with approximately 50 in service from 1946 to 1950 and they were a significant influence on future French tank design Using detailed artwork and contemporary photographs this fascinating book tells the little known story of the Panther tank in foreign hands in World War II and beyond

M48 Patton vs Centurion David R. Higgins, 2016-01-20 The Indo Pakistani War of 1965 witnessed some of the largest tank battles since World War II notably between India's British made Centurion Mk 7s and the American made M48 Pattons fielded by Pakistan The two countries tank regiments many of which shared a proud legacy in the British Indian Army fought one another in the difficult terrain of Jammu and Kashmir the focus of a long running dispute between India and Pakistan The armoured clashes at Asal Uttar Chawinda and Phillora would demonstrate that the Centurion with its powerful gun and lower profile generally proved superior to the faster lighter but overly complex Patton Featuring full colour artwork expert analysis and archive photographs this is the full story of the clash between two leading tanks of the Cold War era that were never designed to fight each other but rather to line up on battlefields as allies Bradley vs BMP Mike Guardia,2016-07-28 In the mid 1960s the Soviet Union unveiled the BMP the first true infantry fighting vehicle A revolutionary design the BMP marked a significant departure from the traditional armoured personnel carrier with a lower silhouette and heavier armament than rival APCs One of the most fearsome light armoured vehicles of its day it caused great consternation on the other side of the Iron Curtain as the Americans scrambled to design a machine to rival the BMP The result was the M2 M3 Bradley These Cold War icons first clashed not on the plains of Europe but in southern Iraq during the Gulf War of 1991 Featuring specially commissioned full colour artwork this is the absorbing story of the origins development and combat performance of the BMP and Bradley culminating in the bloody battles of the Gulf War Katyusha Jamie Prenatt,2016-06-16 Although military rockets have been used since the Middle Ages it was not until the Soviet Union pioneered the concept of Multiple Rocket Launchers MRLs in the late 1930s that they emerged as a decisive weapon In the modern era these Soviet Russian Katyushas have served in combat in Afghanistan Chechnya and Georgia Developed to fill the operational need for massed artillery fire support the MRL possesses enormous destructive power and a devastating psychological impact This New Vanguard provides a survey of Soviet and Russian Federation MRLs from the beginning of their development in 1941 to the present It focuses on the history design and specifications of self propelled ground MRL systems but also covers towed static railway and naval mounts It highlights the many variants of the principal systems and include MRL unit tables of organization and equipment information on MRL munition types and coverage of dedicated MRL resupply vehicles
