Reily, Katherine Brucher, 2018-03-14 WINNER OF THE 2019 SOCIETY OF ETHNOMUSICOLOGY ELLEN KOSKOFF PRIZE FOR EDITED COLLECTIONS The Routledge Companion to the Study of Local Musicking provides a reference to how cross culturally musicking constructs locality and how locality is constructed by the musicking that takes place within it that is how people engage with ideas of community and place through music The term musicking has gained currency in music studies and refers to the diverse ways in which people engage with music regardless of the nature of this engagement By linking musicking to the local this book highlights the ways in which musical practices and discourses interact with people's everyday experiences and understandings of their immediate environment their connections and commitment to that locality and the people who exist within it It explores what makes local musicking local By viewing musicking from the perspective of where it takes place the contributions in this collection engage with debates on the processes of musicking identity construction community building and network formation competitions and rivalries place and space making and local global dynamics Klamath National Forest (N.F.), Round Valley Fuels Reduction and Vegetation Management Project, 2009 Morphosyntactic Variation in Bantu Eva-Marie Bloom Ström, Hannah Gibson, Rozenn Guérois, Lutz Marten, 2024-11-05 This volume explores the rich and complex pattern of morphosyntactic variation in the Bantu languages providing a comprehensive overview of the wealth of empirical and conceptual work in the field The chapters discuss data from some 80 Bantu languages as well as drawing on a wider comparative set of more than 200 languages from across Central Eastern and Southern Africa some studies focus on one specific language in a comparative context some investigate fine grained variation among a close knit group of languages and others present large scale comparative studies spanning the whole of the Bantu speaking area The contributors address a range of topics from a micro variation perspective primarily in the areas of nominal and verbal morphology and syntax and information structure The volume highlights key aspects of contemporary research in Bantu morphosyntax and outlines distinct and novel approaches to prominent questions it combines the most recent thinking on morphosyntactic variation in Bantu with different theoretical and methodological approaches and novel empirical data from a wide range of languages Flexibility in Adaptation Planning Mohanasundar Radhakrishnan, 2017-12-01 The magnitude and urgency of the need to adapt to climate change is such that addressing it has been taken up by the United Nations as one of the sustainable development goals Goal 13 SDG13 in 2015 SDG13 emphasises the need to strengthen resilience and adaptive capacity to climate related hazards and natural disasters Coping with urban floods is one of the major needs of climate adaptation where integration of climate change responses into flood risk management policies strategies and planning at international national regional and local levels is now the norm However much of this integration lacks effectiveness or real commitment from stakeholders involved in adaptation planning and implementation Hence this research has focused on integrating flexibility based adaptation responses into an urban flood risk management context The research has synthesised flexible adaptation practices from several disciplines including information technology automobile and aerospace manufacturing The outcomes of the research are brought together in a framework for structuring local adaptation responses and an adaptation planning process based on flexibility concepts The outcomes provide a way to assist with the identification of the appropriate nature and type of flexibility required where flexibility can best be incorporated and when is the most appropriate time to implement the flexible adaptation responses in the context of urban flooding
