Second Pay Commission, 1981 Federal Communications Commission Reports United States. Federal Communications Commission, 1968 Annual Report India. Ministry of Urban Development and Poverty Alleviation, 2000 Structuring a Movement and Spreading it on Jaya Arunachalam, Brunhild Landwehr, 2003 Founded in 1978 the goal of the Working Women s Forum is to improve living conditions of working women in India Its struggle against poverty and insufficient social protection includes programs for women s health and welfare and credits and cooperatives to enhance the economic participation of women This organization has developed into a platform for empowerment giving Indian women both voice and capacity to realize their economic and social goals The Working Women s Forum has for over a decade and a half mobilized the poorest and the most marginalized sector of the work force in India Poor women workers face constraints and oppression by their barriers of caste class and gender that further marginalize their position both at home and at work place Caste affiliation restricts their mobility and formulates cultural norms for their social behavior Class membership limits their access to productive resources and makes them invisible in the economic spheres The gender roles relegate women to a low productive occupation near the household minimizing their economic role as only an extension of their domestic chores In detailing the history and growth of the Working Women s Forum in India Structuring a Movement and Spreading It On shows how women workers are undermined as workers defined as housewives and forced to a status of invisibility living in subsistence and marginal survival conditions Their vital contribution to the productive process and thereby the nation s economy is unrecognized Therefore the nation s planning process never makes the requisite allocations for the growth and development of this section It is this segment of the work force that have been organized by the Working Women s Forum through credit cooperatives and collective spirit of unionism that has brought about a sea change in the lives of the poorest women Today thousands of women have been released from the clutches of perpetual indebtedness and dependency on moneylenders and other middlemen Women have thus been able to save create assets and improve the quality of living thus ensuring growth with equity
