

World AIDS Day — December 1, 2019

World AIDS Day, observed annually on December 1, draws attention to the status of the human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) epidemic. Approximately 37.9 million persons worldwide are living with HIV infection, including 1.7 million persons newly infected in 2018 (1).

With support from the U.S. President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR), several African countries are on track to achieve HIV epidemic control. In 2017, an estimated 1,020,419 persons in the United States and dependent areas were living with diagnosed HIV infections; 37,832 new cases were diagnosed in 2018 (2). The aim of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' proposed Ending the HIV Epidemic: A Plan for America initiative (3) is to end the U.S. HIV epidemic within 10 years.

Through global efforts, including PEPFAR, in 2018, 23.3 million persons worldwide received antiretroviral therapy. A report in this issue of MMWR describes the status of implementation of HIV case-based surveillance systems in 39 PEPFAR-supported countries (4).

Human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) case-based surveillance (CBS) systematically and continuously collects available demographic and health event data (sentinel events*) about persons with HIV infection from diagnosis and, if available, throughout routine clinical care until death, to characterize HIV epidemics and guide program improvement (1,2). Surveillance signals such as high viral load, mortality, or recent HIV infection can be used for rapid public health action. To date, few standardized assessments have been conducted to describe HIV CBS systems globally (3,4). For this assessment, a survey was disseminated during May–July 2019 to all U.S. President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief

* Sentinel events include various events throughout medical care for a client with diagnosed HIV infection, such as HIV recency status (recent or long-term infection at time of diagnosis), clinical laboratory values such as CD4 count and viral load, change in antiretroviral therapy regimens, and death.

Handbook of Clinical Psychology in Medical Settings Ronald H. Rozensky, Jerry J. Sweet, Steven M. Tovian, 2013-06-29 For two decades I have been responding to questions about the nature of health psychology and how it differs from medical psychology behavioral medicine and clinical psychology From the beginning I have taken the position that any application of psychological theory or practice to problems and issues of the health system is health psychology I have repeatedly used an analogy to Newell and Simon's General Problem Solver program of the late 1950s and early 1960s which had two major functional parts in addition to the executive component One was the problem solving core the procedural competence the other was the representation of the problem environment In the analogy the concepts knowledge and techniques of psychology constitute the core competence the health system in all its complexity is the problem environment A health psychologist is one whose basic competence in psychology is augmented by a working knowledge of some aspect of the health system Quite apparently there are functionally distinct aspects of health psychology to the degree that there are meaningful subdivisions in psychological competence and significantly different microenvironments within the health system I hesitate to refer to them as areas of specialization as the man who gave health psychology its formal definition Joseph Matarazzo has said that there are no specialties in psychology cited in the editors preface to this book

Dying to be Men Will Courtenay, 2011-05-09 Masculinity has a powerful effect on the health of men and boys Indeed many of the behaviors they use to be men actually increase their risk of disease injury and death In this book Dr Will Courtenay an internationally recognized expert on men's health provides a foundation for understanding this troubling reality With a comprehensive review of data and literature he identifies specific gender differences in the health related attitudes beliefs and behaviors of men and boys and the health consequences of these differences He then describes the powerful social environmental institutional and cultural influences that encourage their unhealthy behaviors and constrain their adoption of healthier ones In the book's third section he more closely examines the health needs of specific populations of men such as ethnic minority men rural men men in college and men in prisons Courtenay also provides four empirical studies conducted with multidisciplinary colleagues that examine the associations between masculinity and men and boys health beliefs and practices Finally he provides specific strategies and an evidence
