The Great Gatsby's Wealth and Its Hollow Pursuit of Daisy
<https://studycorgi.com/money-and-wealth-in-the-great-gatsby/>

you have to have the latest in technology in all areas of your life, from your car stereo to your cell phone. You also have to know how to dress well in expensive clothes, use the right product in your hair and, whether you're male or female, have your nails properly manicured.

The end result of all this focusing on exterior details and material wealth is that no one has time to develop deeper attributes. The soul is left to atrophy because it is given no real sustenance. For example, if a man drives up to a restaurant to meet a girl in a rusty old car, she instantly decides that she doesn't like him and shuts him out for the rest of the evening. She doesn't even hear his remark that he's driving the 'rust-bucket' as a means of remembering his grandfather who recently died and is planning to get the car fixed up as a classic. People who don't have a lot of money but have a lot of inner worth are passed over as insignificant in favor of the empty shell of a person who has all the cash and flash but none of the inner fire. Ironically, it's often only the people who don't have a lot of money who manage to find their way to a greater truth and a more fulfilling sense of value. They learn the intrinsic personal benefits of helping out another person, for example, and discover the greater value of self-knowledge and self-worth. While a great many people wander around America with all the necessary accomplishments of the 'American dream', they remain unhappy with their lives and feeling empty. They blame this on their jobs, on their spouse, on their children, and on their parents, but never take the time to look inside to find the value they're missing.
