Learning to Love the Bomb Sean M. Maloney, 2007 In Learning to Love the Bomb Sean M Maloney explores the controversial subject of Canada's acquisition of nuclear weapons during the Cold War Based on newly declassified Canadian and U S documents it examines policy strategy operational and technical matters and weaves these seemingly disparate elements into a compelling story that finally unlocks several Cold War mysteries For example while U S military forces during the 1962 Cuban Missile Crisis were focused on the Caribbean Sea and the southeastern United States Canadian forces assumed responsibility for defending the northern United States with aircraft armed with nuclear depth charges flying patrols and guarding against missile attack by Soviet submarines This defensive strategy was a closely guarded secret because it conflicted with Canada's image as a peacekeeper and therefore a more passive member of NATO than its ally to the south It is revealed here for the first time The place of nuclear weapons in Canadian history has until now been a highly secret and misunderstood field subject to rumor rhetoric half truths and propaganda Learning to Love the Bomb reveals the truth about Canada's role as a nuclear power

MasterClass in History Education

Christine Counsell, Katharine Burn, Arthur Chapman, 2016-10-06 MasterClass in History Education draws on international research and practice to present effective and engaging approaches for history teachers who want to explore the ways in which reading research and reflection can support the development of history teaching and learning in the classroom. At the heart of the book is a series of professional enquiries carried out by experienced history teachers working in a range of contexts. Each history teacher addresses clear questions arising from their practice and together they illustrate various approaches to data collection, data analysis and argument. These history teachers also show how they drew on diverse scholarship in history and history education including many publications by other history teachers. In eight further chapters other experts ranging from practitioner scholars to researchers in diverse fields such as history, history education, teacher education, teacher research and curriculum theory reflect on the distinctive insights that these teachers offer and explore connections with their own fields. The combination of perspectives and the depth of knowledge of the varied contributors reveal the importance of different kinds of relationship between theory and practice. The links between classroom realities and research and the critical use of different kinds of text will support history teachers in developing their practice and professional voice.

Learning Outcomes, Academic Credit and Student Mobility

Christine Arnold, Mary Wilson, Jean Bridge, Mary Catherine Lennon, 2020-10-30 There is increasing interest in the use of learning outcomes in postsecondary education and deliberations have surfaced with regard to their potential to serve as a tool for advancing credit transfer. Learning Outcomes, Academic Credit and Student Mobility assesses the conceptual foundations, assumptions and implications of using learning outcomes for the purposes of postsecondary credit transfer and student mobility. Through a critical review of current approaches to the use of learning outcomes across national and international jurisdictions, scholars and practitioners in postsecondary education provide a multivalent examination of their potential impacts in the unique context of Ontario and recommend future directions for the system. The collected works are the culmination of a multi-year study entitled Learning Outcomes for Transfer, funded by the Ontario Council on Articulation and Transfer. Contributions are authored by prominent international scholars across countries with significant outcomes-based experience and education reforms: South Africa, the United States, Australia, Europe and the United Kingdom, and an Ontario research consortium comprising college and university experts working to advance student pathways.

Developing and Validating Test Items Thomas M. Haladyna, Michael C.

Rodriguez, 2013-07-18 Since test items are the building blocks of any test, learning how to develop and validate test items has always been critical to the teaching-learning process. As they grow in importance and use, testing programs increasingly supplement the use of selected-response multiple-choice items with constructed-response formats. This trend is expected to continue As a result a new item writing book is needed one that provides comprehensive coverage of both types of items and of the validity theory underlying them This book is an outgrowth of the author s previous book Developing and Validating Multiple Choice Test Items 3e Haladyna 2004 That book achieved distinction as the leading source of guidance on creating and validating selected response test items Like its predecessor the content of this new book is based on both an extensive review of the literature and on its author s long experience in the testing field It is very timely in this era of burgeoning testing programs especially when these items are delivered in a computer based environment Key features include Comprehensive and Flexible No other book so thoroughly covers the field of test item development and its various applications Focus on Validity Validity the most important consideration in testing is stressed throughout and is based on the Standards for Educational and Psychological Testing currently under revision by AERA APA and NCME Illustrative Examples The book presents various selected and constructed response formats and uses many examples to illustrate correct and incorrect ways of writing items Strategies for training item writers and developing large numbers of items using algorithms and other item generating methods are also presented Based on Theory and Research A comprehensive review and synthesis of existing research runs throughout the book and complements the expertise of its authors

Promoting the Health and Well-Being of People with Learning Disabilities Pauline Heslop,Crispin Hebron,2020-06-10 This textbook presents a practical guide for new and experienced health or social care staff helping them promote the health and well being of people with learning disabilities Given the considerable demand for mandatory training on supporting people with learning disabilities especially in England the book provides a valuable resource for all training courses on working with people with learning disabilities The chapters are co written by practitioners and people with learning disabilities and their families rooting the book in the lived experiences of those concerned Topics covered include core elements of being happy and healthy communication changes in our behaviour when we are unwell making decisions about our health accessing health services how we would want to be treated if we were unwell the use of psychotropic medication what a good death would be and how to keep ourselves healthy In addition the chapters include narrative examples concerning people with learning disabilities and their families so as to highlight key points and share best practice examples The use of personal reflection is used to consider how we can ensure that people with learning disabilities receive care and support that matches what we would expect for ourselves Core questions at the end of each chapter ask the reader to reflect on how the chapter content relates to their own work and how they will apply what they have learned A consistent theme throughout the book is equality of opportunity for people with learning disabilities to achieve good health There is now substantial evidence that people with learning disabilities have poorer health than the general population are more likely to have multiple health needs and can experience difficulties in having their illnesses diagnosed and treated promptly This book aims to help those supporting people with learning disabilities to achieve more equal outcomes
