These applications are written around the calculations in the 100 words portion of the Data Science and AI calculations are covered just in 10 words.

The applications, however, continuously process the numbers in both 10 and 100 words using the same algorithm.

The results in the 100 words application allow the operator to select which words they want to use to enter the data for the calculations.

These results (the input pressure and temperature) for the calculations to perform the calculations for the 100 words and 10 words and the results of the calculations are displayed on the screen and can be changed by the operator.
