of Student Assignment in San Francisco Rand A. Quinn, 2011 The principal goal of the dissertation is to explain the political nature and effect of cultural characterizations on the development of student assignment policy Cultural characterizations are socially constructed portrayals that become influential when stakeholders mobilize to bring about change In education as the professional authority of school boards and superintendents diminishes community stakeholders are increasingly prominent They serve as critical producers and providers of cultural characterizations of public education and its beneficiaries As such the engagement of community stakeholders with public sector institutions organizations and individuals can significantly amplify modify or blunt education policy The dissertation traces the history of community mobilization in San Francisco from 1971 to 2005 during which the federal district court supervised all aspects of the school district s student assignment policy Cultural characterizations of student assignment were structured by three distinct logics of action integration choice and neighborhood These logics were stable but not fixed Changes in the institutional environment coupled with how stakeholders framed understood and shaped these logics led to transformations in student assignment policy that ultimately altered the educational experience of multiple generations of public school students Data are drawn primarily from archival documents from the federal district court the school district and community organizations mainstream and community newspaper articles letters to the editor and editorials and retrospective interviews with key stakeholders
