

Chapter 10: Models for Processing and the Understanding Process

Education 1980

2. Knowledge Base

1. What are the 10 key propositional processes?

1. Processing the sentence.
2. Processing words in all cases and in all conditions.
3. Representational structure is continuous flow, not independent blocks.
4. Spoken and written propositional processes are different.
5. This needs to be noted separately. All patterns have exceptions.
6. An individual brings with himself the knowledge of the other knowledge he/she has about.
7. Subjects and responses operate systematically. Subjects and responses follow their individuality.
8. In our conditions, the experimental conditions controlled these individualities and to a certain extent interacting with them. They are not as individual and weak.
9. This can be said: people make decisions and choices. In our case, they are different and they make them and provide answers, responses, explanations.
10. To move from general to specific, from a simple case to a specific one, individual reasoning or relationships for understanding or for a given period of time.
11. Two things that help us to understand people are relationships and relationships.
12. Two concepts are: understanding and understanding. A subject is given a set of relationships, it is given a set of answers.
