Modelling urban spatial change: a review of international and South African modelling initiatives Chris Wray, 2013-08-30 Urban growth and land use change models have the potential to become important tools for urban spatial planning and management Before embarking on any modelling however GCRO felt it was important to take note of and critically assess lessons to be learnt from international experience and scholarship on spatial modelling as well as a number of South African experiments that model future urban development In 2012 GCRO initiated preliminary research into current international and South African modelling trends through a desktop study and telephone email and personal interviews This Occasional paper sets out to investigate what urban spatial change modelling research is currently being undertaken internationally and within South Africa At the international level urban modelling research since 2000 is reviewed according to five main categories land use transportation LUT cellular automata urban system dynamics agent based models ABMs and spatial economics econometric models SE EMs Within South Africa urban modelling initiatives are categorised differently and include a broader range of urban modelling techniques Typologies used include provincial government modelling initiatives in Gauteng municipal government modelling initiatives other government funded modelling research and academic modelling research The various modelling initiatives described are by no means a comprehensive review of all urban spatial change modelling projects in South Africa but provide a broad indication of the types of urban spatial change modelling underway Importantly the models may form the basis for more accurate and sophisticated urban modelling projects in the future The paper concludes by identifying key urban modelling opportunities and challenges for short to long term planning in the GCR and South Africa

A composite index of quality of life for the Gauteng city-region: a principal component analysis approach Talita Greyling, The improvement of the quality of life of all South Africans is high on the agenda at national The National Planning Commission 2012 and regional levels of government The Gauteng Planning Commission 2012 and it is therefore important to develop an instrument that can measure this multi dimensional concept The need therefore exists for a composite index of quality of life with the ability to both track the quality of life of people over time and compare it across different demographic and socio economic groups Such a measure could identify those demographic and socio economic groups with low levels of quality of life and also highlight dimensions that need to be prioritised in order to improve the wellbeing of people In South Africa there are a limited number of quality of life indices and measures of wellbeing Indices that measure wellbeing nationally include the Quality of Life Index of Moller and Schlemmer 1983 the Living Standard Measure LSM Index produced by the South African Audience Research Foundation SAARF 2013 the South African Development Index of the South African Institute of Race Relations 2011 and the Everyday Quality of Life Index Higgs 2007 The following indices measure wellbeing at a regional level the Quality of Metropolitan City Life in South Africa Index Naude et al 2009 the Non Economic Quality of Life Index at Sub National Levels Rossouw Naude 2008 and the Quality of Life Index of the Gauteng City Region Observatory GCRO 2011 Although these quality of life indices make distinctive contributions to the study field the focus of these studies is often to measure only objective or subjective quality of life or only economic or non economic quality of life rather than all of the above Furthermore many of the indices use equal weighting which does not necessarily reflect the priorities of the communities Catalogue ,2003 A
