Hale and Kopp

On the night of July 23, 1848, a man named Thomas Kopp was observing the night sky in Arizona through a telescope. He had already examined the sky with the telescope. Kopp noticed a faint glow that he had never seen before. He asked a friend who was with him to look at the new object. There were too many known objects to guess that the glow was not on the chart.

The day was bright in New Mexico. How could Kopp notice to look at the night sky through his telescope as he often did?

It was a very clear night. Kopp looked up with his telescope at a part of the sky he had been studying a few weeks earlier. Suddenly, he perceived a mystery. He had noticed something new. There it was, a faint, fuzzy glow. Kopp had made a great discovery of what he saw. He believed he had just found a comet.

Kopp was shocked by the new object. Like Kopp, he did not find the object on his chart. Kopp sent a message to a friend in Massachusetts that many of others. He told the people of the center what he had seen.

Thomas Kopp also sent a message to the center in Massachusetts. The next morning, he heard back from the center. Kopp, like Kopp, had discovered a new comet.

Twelve hours after Kopp and Kopp had first seen the object, it had a name of Comet Hale-Bopp.
