Developing Evaluative Judgement in Higher Education David Boud,Rola Ajjawi,Phillip Dawson,Joanna Tai,2018-04-19 A key skill to be mastered by graduates today is the ability to assess the quality of their own work and the work of others This book demonstrates how the higher education system might move away from a culture of unhelpful grades and rigid marking schemes to focus instead on forms of feedback and assessment that develop the critical skills of its students Tracing the historical and sociocultural development of evaluative judgement and bringing together evidence and practice design from a range of disciplines this book demystifies the concept of evaluative judgement and shows how it might be integrated and encouraged in a range of pedagogical contexts Contributors develop various understandings of this often poorly understood concept and draw on their experience to showcase a toolbox of strategies including peer learning self regulated learning self assessment and the use of technologies A key text for those working with students in the higher education system Developing Evaluative Judgement in Higher Education will give readers the knowledge and confidence required to promote these much needed skills when working with individual students and groups Argumentative Writing in a Second Language Alan R. Hirvela,Diane Belcher,2021-12-13 Argumentative Writing in a Second Language is a collection on teaching argumentative writing offering multiple vantage points drawn from the contributors own teaching

Transparency in Assessment - Exploring the Influence of Explicit Assessment Criteria Anders Jönsson, Frans Prins, 2019-04-03 In many schools and higher education institutions it has become common practice to share assessment criteria with students Sometimes it is required for accountability purposes at other times criteria are used as a means to communicate expectations to students However the idea that explicit assessment criteria should be shared with students has been contested On the one hand research has shown that explicit criteria may positively affect student performance reduce their anxiety as well as support students use of self regulated learning strategies On the other hand there are fears that explicit criteria may have a restraining influence on students learning as well as limiting their autonomy and creativity There are also indications of students becoming more performance oriented as opposed to learning oriented when being provided with explicit assessment criteria Taken together it is not fully understood under which circumstances it is productive for student learning to share explicit assessment criteria and under which circumstances it is not In particular empirical research on the proposed negative effects of sharing criteria with learners is limited and most fears voiced in the literature are based on individual experiences and anecdotal evidence In this book we therefore bring different perspectives on transparency in assessment together in order to further our understanding of how students are influenced by the use of explicit assessment criteria A deeper understanding of the influence of explicit assessment criteria on students understanding of criteria motivation and learning is equally imperative for future research and educational practice both of which need to go beyond individual opinions and convictions
