development of early literacy skills, as well as the development of a positive attitude toward reading. The authors suggest that the most effective way to achieve these goals is through the use of a variety of reading materials, including books, magazines, and newspapers, and through the use of a variety of reading strategies, including shared reading, independent reading, and reading aloud.

- the most common of these problems is the lack of a clear understanding of the role of the patient in the process of care. The patient is often seen as a passive recipient of care, rather than an active participant in the decision-making process. This can lead to a lack of motivation and adherence to treatment. The role of the patient is to be an active participant in the decision-making process, to be involved in the planning and evaluation of care, and to be responsible for the implementation of the care plan.
