Green, 2000-11-09 The biographies of more than 800 women form the basis for Elna Green's study of the suffrage and the antisuffrage movements in the South Green's comprehensive analysis highlights the effects that factors such as class background marital status educational level and attitudes about race and gender roles had in inspiring the region's women to work in favor of or in opposition to their own enfranchisement Green sketches the ranks of both movements which included women and men black and white and identifies the ways in which issues of class race and gender determined the composition of each side Coming from a wide array of beliefs and backgrounds Green argues southern women approached enfranchisement with an equally varied set of strategies and ideologies Each camp defined and redefined itself in opposition to the other But neither was entirely homogeneous issues such as states rights and the enfranchisement of black women were so divisive as to give rise to competing organizations within each group By focusing on the grassroots constituency of each side Green provides insight into the whole of the suffrage debate

Before the New Deal Elna C. Green, 1999 The Civil War and Reconstruction changed the face of social welfare provision in the South as thousands of people received public assistance for the first time in their lives This book examines the history of southern social welfare institutions and policies in those formative years Ten original essays explore the local nature of welfare and the limited role of the state prior to the New Deal The contributors consider such factors as southern distinctiveness the impact of gender on policy and practice and ways in which welfare practices reinforced social hierarchies By examining the role of the South s unique political economy the impact of racism on social institutions and the region s experience of war this book makes it clear that the South s social welfare story is no mere carbon copy of the nation s
