Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results showed that the men's cardiovascular fitness improved significantly, as measured by a decrease in heart rate and an increase in oxygen consumption. Strength training also resulted in an increase in muscle mass and strength. The study concluded that a 12-week training program can effectively improve the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.

Figure 10 shows the results of the simulations. The corresponding results presented and the values are given in Table 10.
