Gold River Gunman The Mountain Man Series:

Gold River Gunman Robert M. Johnson, 2014-11-13 1850 It was the beginning of something that would define America for 100 years Gold had been discovered in California and word spread like wildfire across the United Colonies of America The treaty that had acquired California into the American Union was signed two years earlier when no one yet knew the importance of the gold discovered at Sutter's Mill in January 1849 From Sacramento all the way down to Mariposa and Monterey the territory of California seemed to be one long Gold field California in 1850 was a boiling seething frontier mass of humanity People had come by the tens of thousands from all over the world mostly from the Eastern American Colonies to seek their fortune in the Goldfields Three Rivers held the secrets of the gold rush the American the Sacramento and the Merced Rivers They were the RIVERS OF GOLD John Charles Fremont had taken advantage of the fragile land situation in California during the transition from Mexican rule to American management The Mexican government had wanted desperately to entice nobles from Mexico City to take over large land grants in the California territory and begin to establish the feudal model they hoped would bring stability to the area When the transition occurred between the Mexican rule and the American it was the most natural thing in the world to respect these subdivisions especially in more remote territories Along the Merced River in Mariposa County in Southern California it seemed right therefore to put these large land grants up for sale to the first American bidders One such parcel was bought by John Charles Fremont and his partner Thomas Larkin for a small amount of money They gained a large land grant a tract of land that was seventy miles square along the Merced River and at the foothills of the Yosemite Mountains Time would prove this to be one of the great real estate acquisitions the new state of California would ever see Historically it would make John Fremont a millionaire many times over John Charles Fremont and his partners had purchased an enormous land grant along the southern end on the East of the Merced River Bordered by the Sierra Mountains to the east the vast property of what had come to be known as Fremont Enterprises posed a problem of significant legality In 1850 California territory became the state of California the thirty first state in the Union and John Charles Fremont owner of this considerable land grant along the Merced became the first senator representing California in Washington Fremont was a man who had become a thorn in the side of Washington politicians because of the issue of slavery which he opposed vehemently While he was preoccupied in this way setting the course for California in American history his land grant was being managed by men he had come to trust Two men in particular helped to manage the rich gold deposits of his property Jeremiah Warner his field manager and Alex Godey who managed the actual mining itself The story you are about to read is a snapshot of what happened on the rough and tumble frontier of the Goldfields It is the Seventeenth volume of the Mountain Man Series the excitement of the frontier continues in Gold River Gunman River Gold to Die for Robert M. Johnson, 2015-09-21 The decade following the California gold rush of 1849 was a time of tumult and treachery Hundreds of thousands poured into the territory whose main settlements barely harbored a thousand people The American government was overwhelmed at dealing with the raucous situation which it had inherited from a dispirited Mexican political machine The men who had set this grand American experiment in motion looked to one man John Charles Fremont for direction His Fremont Enterprises is the subject of this 18th volume of the Mountain Man Series River Gold To Die For Fremont was himself engulfed in the mining frenzy that drove his contemporaries to leave hearth and home squandering their life savings for the promise of GOLD This massive migration would take years to settle down and in the meantime it would depend on men like John Fremont's fictional friend and Gunman Jeremiah Warner The land grant owned by Fremont covered more than thirty square miles along the southern stretch of the Merced River gold country In this story the eighteenth volume of the Mountain Man Series Jeremiah Warner goes from being the Boundary Rider to becoming the Gold River Gunman He will be called on to be judge and jury for the dangerous element that is now slipping into the saloons and brothels of the California frontier The wealth of the Fremont Enterprises can quickly become River Gold to Die For The Jeremiah Warner Mountain Man Series follows his adventures through the Rocky Mountain Wilderness and now into the thick of the California Gold Rush

Mountain Man James Forrest, 2019-05-02 Nicknamed Mountain Man by the Sunday Telegraph James Forrest is the record breaking adventurer who climbed every mountain in England and Wales in just six months the fastest ever time Solo and unsupported he walked over 1 000 miles and ascended five times the height of Everest during his 446 peak challenge And he did it all on his days off from work proving it is possible to integrate an epic adventure into your everyday life From collapsing tents and horrific storms to near fatal mountaineering mishaps James endured his fair share of hardship out in the hills But the good times far outweighed the bad He slept wild under the stars met eccentric locals and exchanged the 21st century social media bubble for a simpler more peaceful existence What did he learn along the way That life is more fulfilling when you switch off your phone and climb a mountain Readers will be inspired and motivated by James's amazing adventure and so the book concludes with a section on how YOU can achieve your next adventure whether it's something to get the kids involved in at half term a fun challenge to tackle solo or with friends or like James's a record breaking attempt of epic proportions James will guide you through everything you need to do to plan and execute your adventure as well as give you some great ideas too
