The Downsizing of Economics Professors Steven Payson, 2017-10-24. The number of economics professors now teaching at universities will decline substantially over the next couple of decades. This will happen for one main reason: the advent of distance learning, especially in the form of Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs), which enable a single professor to lecture to tens of thousands of students. Other academic fields will undoubtedly encounter similar reductions in their numbers of professors. However, as this book argues, at several levels academic economics is the one profession that is most qualified to study and address the topic. In this sense, it is the one profession that should best recognize the economic benefits of this transition, which this book describes, and take responsibility for leading the transition among all academic fields. Unfortunately, the position espoused by several academic economists has been against this inevitable transition, a position that politically upholds their employment and the status of their institutions. They have asserted that MOOCs lower the quality of education and threaten the financial viability of traditional universities. Based on extensive evidence and analysis, however, this book argues that their position is untenable. Their position is hypocritical as well, given the fact that economics professors more than anyone else have upheld the idea that jobs should be lost and new ones should be gained in response to technological changes that promote economic efficiency. There is also irony in the fact that the high tuitions required to maintain traditional classrooms effectively deny a college education to those who cannot afford it. Thus, unsound arguments that traditional lectures are needed to preserve the quality of education actually do not improve the quality of education but have the only real effect of denying education to many people who would otherwise be able to receive it. To address this topic comprehensively, the book goes deep into fundamental questions about what economics professors really do with their time and energy and what they should be doing in the best interests of their students and of society. These are areas that the profession has needed to address for a long time but has failed to do so.

Sentiment

Analysis and Opinion Mining Bing Liu, 2022-05-31 Sentiment analysis and opinion mining is the field of study that analyzes people's opinions, sentiments, evaluations, attitudes, and emotions from written language. It is one of the most active research areas in natural language processing and is also widely studied in data mining, Web mining, and text mining. In fact, this research has spread outside of computer science to the management sciences and social sciences due to its importance to business and society as a whole. The growing importance of sentiment analysis coincides with the growth of social media, such as reviews, forum discussions, blogs, micro blogs, Twitter, and social networks. For the first time in human history, we now have a huge volume of opinionated data recorded in digital form for analysis. Sentiment analysis systems are being applied in almost every business and social domain because opinions are central to almost all human activities and are key influencers of our behaviors. Our beliefs and perceptions of reality and the choices we make are largely conditioned on how others see and evaluate the world. For this reason, when we need to make a decision, we often seek out the opinions of others. This is true not only for individuals but also for organizations. This book is a comprehensive introductory and survey text. It covers all important topics and the latest developments in the field with over 400 references. It is suitable for students, researchers, and practitioners who are interested in social media analysis in general and sentiment analysis in particular. Lecturers can readily use it in class for courses on natural language processing, social media analysis, text mining, and data mining. Lecture slides are also available online. Table of Contents: Preface, Sentiment Analysis: A Fascinating Problem, The Problem of Sentiment Analysis, Document Sentiment Classification, Sentence Subjectivity and Sentiment Classification, Aspect-Based Sentiment Analysis, Sentiment Lexicon Generation, Opinion Summarization, Analysis of Comparative Opinions, Opinion Search and Retrieval, Opinion Spam Detection, Quality of Reviews, Concluding Remarks, Bibliography, Author Biography.
