Human Body Organs

Kidneys

Kidneys are the body's natural filters. They regulate the balance of fluids and waste in the body. They are located in the back of the body, one on each side of the spine. They filter out toxins and excess fluid from the blood, and then excrete them as urine. They also help to regulate blood pressure and produce hormones that control the body's metabolism.

Stomach

Stomach is a muscular organ that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the upper abdomen, just below the diaphragm. It is responsible for breaking down food into smaller pieces that can be absorbed by the body. It also produces stomach acid, which helps to kill bacteria and other harmful organisms that may be present in the food.

Small Intestine

Small intestine is a long, coiled tube that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the lower abdomen, just below the stomach. It is responsible for absorbing nutrients from the food that has been broken down in the stomach. It also produces enzymes that help to break down food into smaller pieces that can be absorbed by the body.

Large Intestine

Large intestine is a long, coiled tube that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the lower abdomen, just below the small intestine. It is responsible for absorbing water and electrolytes from the food that has been broken down in the small intestine. It also produces mucus, which helps to lubricate the passage of stool through the colon.

Heart

Hear is a muscular organ that is part of the circulatory system. It is located in the center of the chest, between the lungs. It is responsible for pumping blood throughout the body. It has four chambers: two atria and two ventricles. The right side of the heart pumps blood to the lungs, and the left side pumps blood to the rest of the body.

Liver

Liver is a large, reddish-brown organ that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the upper right abdomen, just below the diaphragm. It is responsible for filtering toxins from the blood and producing bile, which helps to break down food in the small intestine. It also stores glycogen, a form of sugar that can be used for energy.

Lungs

Lungs are a pair of organs that are part of the respiratory system. They are located in the chest, on either side of the heart. They are responsible for taking in oxygen from the air and expelling carbon dioxide from the body. They are made of spongy tissue that allows them to expand and contract as they breathe.

Brain

Brain is a complex organ that is part of the nervous system. It is located in the head, protected by the skull and meninges. It is responsible for controlling all of the body's functions, from movement to thought. It is made of gray matter, which is the outer layer of the brain, and white matter, which is the inner layer.
