Christianization and Commonwealth in Early Medieval Europe Nathan J. Ristuccia,2018-02-09 Christianization and Commonwealth in Early Medieval Europe re examines the alterations in Western European life that followed widespread conversion to Christianity the phenomena traditionally termed Christianization It refocuses scholarly paradigms for Christianization around the development of mandatory rituals One prominent ritual Rogationtide supplies an ideal case study demonstrating a new paradigm of Christianization without religion Christianization in the Middle Ages was not a slow process through which a Christian system of religious beliefs and practices replaced an earlier pagan system In the Middle Ages religion did not exist in the sense of a fixed system of belief bounded off from other spheres of life Rather Christianization was primarily ritual performance Being a Christian meant joining a local church community After the fall of Rome mandatory rituals such as Rogationtide arose to separate a Christian commonwealth from the pagans heretics and Jews outside it A Latin West between the polis and the parish had its own institution the Rogation procession for organizing local communities For medieval people sectarian borders were often flexible and rituals served to demarcate these borders Rogationtide is an ideal case study of this demarcation because it was an emotionally powerful feast which combined pageantry with doctrinal instruction community formation social ranking devotional exercises and bodily mortification As a result rival groups quarrelled over the holiday s meaning and procedure sometimes violently in order to reshape the local order and ban people and practices as non Christian Prayers Public and Private Edward White Benson,1899 The chronicle of Convocation ... for the sessions ... Convocation prov. of Canterbury,1875 The Ecclesiastical gazette, or, Monthly register of the affairs of the Church of England ,1877 Tracts Alcuin Club,1965 Prayers, public and private, compiled, written or tr. by E.W.
