

International Business Final Exam

Chapter 3

- Globalization has increased the opportunities but effort is required to overcome by making around the world profitable efficient by producing in businesses very important ideas.
- Integration of the economies (1980s) the production of the products getting international rather than being produced in the first market until the economic expansion.
- Economic integration leads to global effects. Brazil is a good example for globalization integration and economically started growing rapidly in developing nations.
- In globalization world, it is transforming industries and creating economic opportunities when nations that join start producing economic opportunities.
- Economic globalization is a good thing for world in benefiting them.
- Globalization means nations with shared common integrated and interconnected world economy.
 - Globalization has some effects on each one:
 - 1- Globalization of markets : refers to the merging different local markets and separate national markets into one large global market (the movement of the goods and services across borders, trade war or trade is a global market).
 - 2- Globalization of production : refers to creating global value chains from different countries to take advantage of each country's strengths in labour and quality resources of production. Value chains include different countries from raw materials to the final products (for example, the car industry, the car components are made in different countries, the car is assembled in the final country).
 - 3- Globalization of consumers.
- The globalization is economically benefiting and a convergence of economies have resulted in the market of more global consumers.
- The problems with globalization:
 - 1- National and international political economic conditions.
 - 2- Barriers to foreign investments.
 - 3- Transportation costs.
 - 4- Customs and regulations.
- Another on the globalization issues is production strategy. It is a strategic approach, which the global market where production capabilities, infrastructure, information and technology are global business systems.
- Globalization includes the following:
