brass and percussion students The book covers every aspect of teaching beginning band students from the first sounds on the instruments through the first full band performances It is the only comprehensive reference that offers step by step guidelines for teaching each beginning band instrument as well as organizing and running a successful beginning band program Based on the public school teaching experience of the author the book is designed for use in undergraduate methods and pedagogy classes as well as for clinics and workshops at the undergraduate and graduate levels This book is also designed to be a reference for the many novice teachers who lead beginning bands or those teachers whose expertise is not in the band realm While the focus of the book is on teaching beginning band much of the book can be of use to band instructors at any grade level The book is divided into several parts which cover the sound to sign to theory approach to teaching musical literacy child development as it relates to teaching music recruiting and retaining students developing fundamental sounds and skills on each woodwind brass and percussion instrument teaching students to read tonal and rhythmic music notation and selecting and rehearsing beginning band solo ensemble and full band music The book also addresses curriculum design scheduling and staffing of band programs Ideas about managing student records inventory and equipment are also given special attention Written in a casual narrative style the book features real world examples of how the principles in the book might be applied to actual teaching situations Another special feature of the book is a set of early field experience application exercises Starting Out Right guides readers as they explore a comprehensive individual and ensemble approach to teaching each woodwind brass and percussion instrument

Goals and Self-assessment in the Middle School Learner Steven Rex Oare, 2007 With the intent of improving the teaching of practice strategies to young musicians the purpose of this multiple case study was to discover how students use goal setting and self assessment within their personal practice sessions and how these self regulative components affect strategy choice and motivation The specific questions were as follows a What goal setting and self assessment comments do novice adolescent instrumental musicians make during instrumental practice b What goal setting and self assessment strategies do novice adolescent instrumental musicians use during instrumental practice c Are there differences in practice strategies found among students when they are deliberately involved in goal setting or self assessment compared to times when they are not setting goals or self assessment and d What strategies do students use to address various technical aspects of performance This study entailed the observation of middle school aged instrumental music students N 6 during their individual practice Two students were in eighth grade and four were in seventh grade The students played flute N 2 clarinet N 1 saxophone N 2 and trombone N 1 Data was collected via field notes videotape analysis of three practice sessions per student along with concurrent and retrospective verbal reports focus group interviews before and after the observation cycle commenced and concluded and an interview with the students band director Data were analyzed within cases and across cases for emergent themes Four themes were found to describe a cyclical practice process in which students moved from motivation to goal setting to strategy use to assessment and back to motivation Each stage of the cycle seemed to drive other stages Students with learning goal orientations seemed to practice more effectively than students with performance or time orientations Student goals tended to lack specificity which negatively influenced student choice of practice strategy and self assessment Three external factors were found that had a strong influence on the practice cycle including teachers musical aural image and learning development These three factors wove their way through all four stages of the practice cycle
