Abstract

This study assessed the continuous assessment and common-mock scores as a predictor of academic performance of Economics students in WASSCE examinations in Nasarawa state, Nigeria. Three research questions were formulated and the study adopted a descriptive survey research design of the ex-post facto type. The population of the study consisted of all the public senior secondary schools III (SS3) students in Nasarawa State and the sample of the study comprised of 1988 SS3 students drawn from 9 public senior secondary schools who sat for WASSCE from 2011-2019 in Akwanga Local Government Area of Nasarawa State. The students' continuous assessment and common-mock scores were used to predict their performance in WASSEC examination. Frequency count and percentage was used for answering research questions while Pearson Product Moment Correlation Coefficient was used to test the hypotheses at 0.05 level of significant. Findings shows that continuous assessment and common-mock scores are good predictor of Economics students' academic performances in WASSCE to a tolerant to some extent. Further result indicated that there is a significant relationship between common mock scores and academics performance of male and female students in Economics WASSCE may/June 2011-2019 years in Nasarawa State secondary schools among others. It was recommended among others that educational stakeholders should ensure that only students whose passed at the credit level in continuous assessment and mock exam scores should be allowed to register for WASSCE and valid continuous assessment and common-mock examination scores of individual students should be subsumed to justify the students' performance in Economics WASSCE examination.

Keywords: Continuous assessment, common-mock scores, academic performance, economics.
