10. Discussion, Future
 The proposed algorithm is a novel approach for identifying the most relevant features in a dataset. It is based on the concept of feature importance, which is a measure of how much a feature contributes to the model's performance. The algorithm is designed to be efficient and scalable, and it can be applied to a wide range of datasets and models. Future work could focus on improving the algorithm's performance on more complex datasets and models, and on exploring its potential applications in other domains.
