Muslim-Christian Romance in Times of Captivity Eva Simmons,2025-05-15 Imagine being captured in war or kidnapped by pirates and sold into slavery The terror you would feel Throughout most of the Middle Ages and later such atrocities were commonplace Christians and Muslims fought battles and enslaved their conquests Members of these two religions were supposed to hate each other And many did But they also fell in love And despite their differences found kinship and dangerous romance This groundbreaking book tells how Muslims and Christians captured and captivated each other and how stories about their passionate love for the other travelled and changed from the Arabian Nights across the Mediterranean and beyond

The Science and Theology of Godly Love Matthew T. Lee,Amos Yong,2012-06-15 Arguing that there are ways to move beyond the limitations of methodological atheism without compromising scientific objectivity the essays gathered in The Science and Theology of Godly Love explore the potential for collaboration between social science and theology They do so within the context of the interdisciplinary study of Godly Love which examines the perceived experience of loving God being loved by God and thereby being motivated to engage in selfless service to others This volume serves as an introduction to and a call for further research in this new field of study offering ten methodological perspectives on the study of Godly Love written by leading social scientists and theologians Drawing on the work of Douglas Porpora and others the contributors contend that agnosticism is the appropriate methodological stance when religious experience is under the microscope Godly Love does not force a theistic explanation on data instead these essays show that it sensitizes researchers so that they can take seriously the faith and beliefs of those they study without the assumption that these theologies represent an incontestable truth

The Scottish State and European Migrants, 1885-1939 Terence McBride,2024-02-29 This book examines the efforts of the government in Scotland to manage the increase of migrants travelling to Britain at the end of the nineteenth century Focussing on the period between 1885 and 1939 the book explores how the Scottish machinery of government handled the administration of foreigners The author uses a comparative thematic approach to analyse migrant experiences identities and relationships with state institutions Drawing from state records held by the National Records of Scotland in Edinburgh the book argues that Scottish officials in semi autonomous boards began to recognise describe and enumerate the presence of the foreigner in the early twentieth century framing their handling of foreignness in accordance with the Aliens Act of 1905 The author goes on to explain that institutions operating in Scotland developed a distinctly Scottish approach to alien matters which continued up until the Second World War Therefore an increasing number of important decisions affecting migrants were taken by a distinctly Scottish machinery of government impacting on how Scottish officials understood foreignness and how those identified as foreigners understood their identity in relation to Scottishness Contributing significantly to current heated debates on migration and identity amongst researchers and the general public in Europe and beyond this book provides essential insights into the ways in which a sub state began to develop practices processes and attitudes towards migration which were not always in line with that of the central government

Annotation Examining the emergence of modernity within the philosophical and political debates of the sixteenth century Religion and the Rise of Modernity resumes the analysis of the great confusion introduced in Volume IV of History of Political Ideas Encompassing a vast range of events ignited by Luther's Ninety Five Theses this period is one of controversy revolution and partiality Despite the era's fragmentation and complexity Voegelin's insightful analysis clarifies its significance and suggests the lines of change converging at a point in the future the medieval Christian understanding of a divinely created closed cosmos was being replaced by a distinctly modern form of human consciousness that posits man as the proper origin of meaning in the universe Analyzing the most significant features of the great confusion Voegelin examines a vast range of thought and issues of the age From the more obvious thinkers to those less frequently
