George R. Graham, Edgar Allan Poe

Half Deserted Streets:

Half Deserted Streets Barrington Jackson, 2014-11-11 Even when the streets are half deserted we may still encounter that one person or happenstance that can change our life That's what simmers underneath each story in the short fiction collection Half Deserted Streets Author Barrington Jackson focuses on how people interact when they face the unlikely or uncomfortable He puts those interactions under a microscope to produce suspenseful short stories that make us question what people are capable of and unearth what lies below our polite exteriors Can a nun be a sexually driven serial killer and if so will anyone ever believe it Can a prostitute find salvation These are just two of the four stories you'll encounter in this intriguing collection Jackson is especially fond of writing literary stories that center on relations between different races religions and socio economic classes And he's particularly adept at creating memorable and believable characters a skill that transforms even the most unlikely storyline into a surprisingly relatable narrative Chance encounters are put in a new light as you journey Half Deserted Streets

Creativity, Madness and Civilisation Richard Pine, 2021-04-16 What is creativity And what is madness How far can we interpret an artist's work through our knowledge of his or her mental state and how far can we infer a mental state from a work of art When does a work of art cease to be a personal statement by the artist and become a matter of public concern The contributions to this book attempt to answer some of these questions They come from a wide range of disciplines and experiences a practising psychiatrist a practising artist suffering from reactive depression and critics working in literature film music and the visual arts The essays include discussions of the myth of creativity the music of Robert Schumann the borders of sanity in the writing of Lawrence Durrell the insane truth of Virginia Woolf the meeting of doctor and patient in the poetry of Anne Sexton mood disorders in the fiction of David Foster Wallace love and madness in the poetry of Hafiz of Shiraz and the paintings of Adolf Wölfli Central to this discussion of creativity madness and civilisation is the difficulty of establishing an appropriate and effective vocabulary and mindset between critics and clinical psychiatrists which would enable them to work together in understanding mental disturbance in creative artists Italy

Josiah Conder, 1839 Pisa-Siena-Rome-Naples Josiah Conder, 1834 A Shaping Joy Cleanth Brooks, 2024-10-31 In A Shaping Joy originally published in 1971 Cleanth Brooks writes about modern literature and the criticism that has been developed to deal with it Most of the essays concern poets and novelists of the twentieth century but there are also discussions of nineteenth century American writers such as Mark Twain and Edgar Allan Poe and of traditional English poets such as Wordsworth Milton and Marlowe Among the functions of literature described in the first essay are those of nourishing the imagination and keeping the language alive and the channels of communication open The criticism contained in the essays that follow admirably exemplifies these concerns Whether writing on the world of William Faulkner and the literature of the American South or on subjects more familiar to the British reader Joyce Auden and T S Eliot for example Professor Brooks keeps the methods of communication marvelously unblocked It is criticism of the rarest kind alert imaginative and wholly invigorating This book will be a beneficial read for students and researchers of English literature particularly of literary criticism A Lincoln Conscript Homer Greene, 2024-11-24 On the second day of July in the year 1863 the Civil War in America was at its height Late in the preceding month Lee had turned his face northward and with an army of a hundred thousand Confederate soldiers at his back had marched up into Pennsylvania There was little to hinder his advance Refraining by reason of strict orders from wanton destruction of property his soldiers nevertheless lived on the rich country through which they passed York and Carlisle were in their grasp Harrisburg was but a day's march away and now on this second day of July flushed with fresh victories they had turned and were giving desperate battle through the streets and on the hills of Gettysburg to the Union armies that had followed them The old commonwealth was stirred as she had not been stirred before since the fall of Sumter Every town and village in the state responded quickly to the governor's call for emergency troops to defend the capital city Mount Hermon already depleted by generous early enlistments and by the draft of 1862 gathered together the bulk of the able-bodied men left in the village and its surroundings and sent them forth in defense of the commonwealth Not that Mount Hermon was in especial danger from Lee's invasion far from it Up in the northeastern corner of the state on a plateau of one of the low foot hills of the Moosic range sheltered by the mountains at its back it was well protected both by reason of distance and location from the advancing foe But Mount Hermon was intensely patriotic In the days preceding the Revolution the sturdy pioneers from Connecticut had met the equally sturdy settlers from the domain of Penn and on this plateau they had fought out their contentions and settled their differences the son of the Pennamite had married the daughter of the Yankee and the new race with love of country tingeing every drop of its blood a deeper red had stayed on and possessed the land So on this July day when the armies of North and South were striving and struggling with each other in bloody combat back and forth across the plain and up the hills of Gettysburg Mount Hermon's heart beat fast But it was not for themselves that these people were anxious It was for the fathers husbands sons lovers in that army with which Meade untried and unproven was endeavoring to match the strategy and strength of Lee News of the first day's skirmishing had reached the village and it was felt that a great battle was imminent In the early evening while the women were still busy at their household tasks the men gathered at the post office and the stores eager for late news anxious to discuss the situation as they had learned it In the meantime the boys of the town had congregated on the village green to resume the military drills which with more or less frequency they had carried on during the summer These drills were not wholly without serious intent It was play indeed but out of the ranks of these boys three of the older ones had already gone to the front to fight real battles and it was felt by the men of the town that the boys could not be too thoroughly imbued with the military spirit So on this July evening wakened into new ardor by the news from Gettysburg they had gathered to resume their nightly work and play There were thirty-three of them ranging in years all the way from eight to eighteen They were eager and enthusiastic At the command to fall in there was much pushing and jostling much striving for desirable places and even the young captain with great show of authority could not quite adjust all differences to the complete satisfaction of his men Before the confusion had wholly ceased and while there were still awkward gaps in the ranks a tall straight shy mannered boy of seventeen who had remained hitherto on the outskirts of the group quietly slipped into one of the vacant places

Jefferson Square Noel B. Gerson, 2014-06-30 Jefferson Square was a multi million dollar culture center but there was nothing at all cultural about some of the things that happened there during its grand opening in the Sixties At the Repertory Theater a play called Confessional was in rehearsal Some called it dramatic literature Others considered it a tasteless exploitation of the playwright s former marriage to America s queen of sex In the expensive interior of Symphony Hall the brilliant and erratic conductor of the Jefferson Square Symphony Orchestra was working feverishly on a new concerto while his private life was rushing toward its own scandalous crescendo In the board room the dream of the state s governor for a presidential nomination was interrupted by the discovery that Jefferson Square was making this rich man richer And in the executive offices where architects drawings were still being argued over Jefferson Square s recently hired cultural director was being tempted to destroy what he had been employed to hold together Jefferson Square provides a fascinating glimpse of life behind the scenes in the midst of the creation of a new urban cultural epicenter a symbol of the gentrification forcing out longtime neighborhood inhabitants From the glitz and the glamor of Jefferson Square proper to the hardships faced by residents of the condemned projects in the area Gerson brings microcosms of the Sixties to Technicolor life

Reflections Chitrotpala Mukherjee, As the title of the book suggests this is a memoir of the long life that I have lived Towards the end of my life I have an inner compulsion to speak about my time on this planet which has been mixed on the whole not bad at all

This book is a kind of putting together entries in diaries and scribbles on paper that I did from time to time almost like a compulsive habit I have also written about certain aspects that have deeply affected me like nature friends relationships and of course death
