

CYLINDER HEAD

VALVE LIFTER MECHANISM/ARRANGEMENT

The current camshaft arrangement in 4-stroke engines can be divided into Single Over Head Camshaft (SOHC) and Double Over Head Camshaft (DOHC) configurations.

The SOHC follows the basic design of 4-stroke engines, operating IN and EX valves through rocker arms with one camshaft. Compared to the DOHC, the SOHC type is less expensive to manufacture and is easier to maintain due to the reduced number of parts. However, "valve jump" (where the valve cannot accurately follow the cam when the engine rotates at high speed) can occur, causing the valve to contact the piston, and causing severe engine damage. To decrease valve mass and reduce the possibility of engine damage during high engine speeds, 4-stroke engines requiring high power generally use the DOHC design in which the valves are operated directly with two separate camshafts for IN and EX valves.

The DOHC configuration can be of two designs: a type pressing the valve bucket directly, or a type lifting the valve through the use of a rocker arm. For the former, a shim is provided in the bucket for valve clearance adjustment. The valve clearance is adjusted by replacing the shim. The shim is usually provided between the bucket and the cam lobe.

Some types have a small shim inserted between the under side of the bucket and the valve stem, allowing less valve actuating mechanism weight.

Some DOHC types are also equipped with rocker arms, allowing easier adjustment of valve clearance.

The DOHC has a further advantage when combined with the 4-valves per cylinder engine type. A larger valve area can be provided in the 4-valve type in comparison to that of the 2-valve type, enabling a greater intake volume of air/fuel mixture and a smoother exhaust. Valve weight is also less, consequently reducing the likelihood of valve jump associated with high engine speeds. Furthermore, with a 4-valve type the spark plug can be placed at the center of the combustion chamber, allowing an easy flame propagation balance during combustion.
