

PARTICLE THEORY AND STATES OF MATTER

What is the basic structure of matter? Understanding the nature of matter and the arrangement of particles is fundamental. The arrangement and movement of particles explain various properties of the matter.

Particle Theory is the theory that all matter is made up of tiny particles. These particles have three characteristics of particle theory:

- 1. Particles are very small. Particles are so small that we cannot see them with the naked eye. They are only visible with the help of special instruments like electron microscope.
- 2. Particles are constantly moving. Particles are constantly moving in all directions. The speed and movement of the particles is different in different states of matter.
- 3. Particles attract each other. There are forces of attraction between particles, which vary depending on the type of matter, solid, liquid, and gas.

States of Matter Matter can exist in three primary states: solid, liquid, and gas. Each state has its own unique properties and arrangement of particles.

Solid: In solids, particles are closely packed in a regular arrangement and have very little space between them. They vibrate in fixed positions. They have a definite shape and volume.

Liquid: In liquids, particles are closely packed but not in a regular arrangement. They have more space between them and can move around. They have a definite volume but no definite shape.

Gas: In gases, particles are far apart and move randomly in all directions. They have no definite shape or volume.

The properties of matter are related to the arrangement and movement of particles. For example, the density of a substance is determined by the mass and volume of its particles. The ability of particles to move together explains the change of state of matter.

Change of State: The transition between states of matter is called a change of state. It occurs when heat energy is added or removed from a substance.

Melting: Melting is the process by which a solid changes into a liquid. It occurs when heat energy is added to a solid, causing the particles to move more freely.

Boiling: Boiling is the process by which a liquid changes into a gas. It occurs when heat energy is added to a liquid, causing the particles to move rapidly and escape into the air.

Condensation: Condensation is the process by which a gas changes into a liquid. It occurs when heat energy is removed from a gas, causing the particles to move more slowly and form droplets.

Freezing: Freezing is the process by which a liquid changes into a solid. It occurs when heat energy is removed from a liquid, causing the particles to move very slowly and form a rigid structure.

1. How does the arrangement of particles in a solid differ from that in a liquid? What is the change of state called? Can you give examples of substances that can do this?

10. Compare the diagrams to show the arrangement of the particles in each state of matter. Does the particles undergo any change of state?

9. What is the change of state and what is the effect of it?

8. What property of matter is demonstrated by the change of state? Give an example of the change of state of matter.

7. How does the change of state affect the particles in matter?

1. What is particle theory?

2. List all the states of matter. Give an example of each state.

3. How does the arrangement of particles in a solid differ from that in a liquid? What is the change of state called?

4. The heat energy given from the particles in a solid is called latent heat. What is the change of state?

5. What are the three states of matter?

Rayanto,2019-12-01 Teaching English reading comprehension in classroom generally is conducted through giving a reading text and doing some exercises in written form. Actually it is less effective in the era of oral language. For learners without knowing the theory of Reading and strategy make them have to spend much time to read and comprehend a reading text. Comprehending a reading text is not as easy as we thought. Still some problems occur for example vocabulary and grammar. Knowing the weakness of learners ability in English language skills this reading book is designed integrated to other subjects they are speaking pronunciation grammar and vocabulary which can be seen in its exercises and implementation. This book also can be used as self study learning because it provides theory and evaluation in reading. Besides that there is answer key at the back of the book which gives answer or possible answers to some exercises. Glossary is also included with its phonetics description for improving learners pronunciation and finding an explanation of certain words used in this book. So it is really useful for all learners included college students teachers and lecturers who want to deepen their knowledge in Reading. I do believe that this book will give some beneficial impacts to college students teachers and lecturers or anyone who interested in reading matters. For college students it can broaden their knowledge about some text types or genre and strategy or techniques in comprehending a reading text faster. Besides that it can make college students be independents effective and efficient learners as self regulated learner. For English teachers and lecturers it will make them realize that teaching reading can be implemented integrated to other subjects and have stronger impacts in improving learners language skills.
