Stephan Kampowski,2018-05-15 Memento mori remember death this is how the medieval monks exhort us Our life given in birth and taken by death is radically marked by finitude which can be a source of great fear and anguish Our finitude however does not in itself need to be something negative It confronts us with the question of our life s meaning and spurs us on to treasure our days Our contingency as evidenced in our birth and death reminds us that we have not made ourselves and that there is nothing necessary about the marvelous fact that we exist Particularly from a Judeo Christian perspective embracing our finitude will mean gratefully accepting life as a completely gratuitous gift and living one s days informed by a sense of this gratitude Passionate Embrace Elisabeth Gerle,2017-05-12 Luther passion and sensualism In an age of body worship as well as body loathing Elisabeth Gerle explores new paths Protestant ethics has often been associated with work and duty excluding sensuality sexuality and other pleasures Gerle embarks on a conversation with Martin Luther in dialogue with contemporary theologians on attitudes toward body sensuality desire sexuality life and politics She draws on Eros theology to challenge traditional Lutheran stereotypes such as the dichotomies between different forms of love as well as between spirit and body Gerle argues that Luther s spiritual breakthrough where grace and gifts of creation became central provides new meaning to sex and desire as well as to work body and ordinary life Women are seen in new light as companions autonomous ethical agents part of the priesthood of all This had revolutionary consequences in medieval Europe and it represents a challenge to contemporary theologies with a nostalgic appetite for austerity asceticism and female submission Luther s erotic and gender fluid language is a healthy challenge to oppressive political structures centered on greed profit and competition A revised Scandinavian creation theology and a deep sense of the incarnational mystery are resources for contemporary theology and ethics Embracing the Other Dunja M. Mohr,2008 In the wake of addressing multiculturalism transculturalism racism and ethnicity the issue of xenophobia and xenophilia has been somewhat marginalized The present collection seeks from a variety of angles to investigate the relations between Self and Other in the New Literatures in English How do we register differences and what does an embrace signify for both Self and Other The contributors deal with a variety of topics ranging from theoretical reflections on xenophobia its exploration in terms of intertextuality and New Zealand Maori historiography to analyses of migrant and border narratives and issues of transitionality authenticity and racism in Canada and South Africa Others negotiate identity and alterity in Nigerian
