New Funding Model to Streamline University Education - PS

The Department of Education (DepEd) is implementing a new funding model for higher education, aimed at streamlining university education. The new model, known as the Performance-Based Funding (PBF) system, will allocate funds to universities based on their performance in various areas, including student outcomes, research, and community service. This approach is expected to encourage universities to improve their quality of education and to focus on the needs of their students. The PBF system will be implemented in a phased manner, starting with a pilot group of universities in 2023. The DepEd is committed to ensuring that the new funding model is fair and transparent, and that it will provide the necessary support for universities to continue to provide high-quality education to their students.
