Homicide and the Politics of Law Reform Jeremy Horder, 2012-07-12 What makes murder murder How should we understand the difference between intentional and reckless killing Should offenders be punished differently according to the perceived severity of their crime and when should they be excused These questions are the topic of intense debate within legal circles and beyond in the UK the US and the rest of world Jeremy Horder's role as the Law Commissioner for England and Wales on criminal law has given him unique insight into these questions and the debates surrounding them Here he analyses the recent political and legal reform movements offering a political history of homicide law reform from the 19th century to the modern era Using homicide as a starting point Horder raises deeper questions of who is and should be responsible for making and changing the law What role should there be for expert bodies judges and politicians What role should there be for the general public These questions invoke strong emotional responses Horder argues that comprehensive research into and a degree of difference to public opinion on the scope of homicide is essential to the reform process It is essential principally as a means of conferring true legitimacy on homicide reform in a democracy Elite or expert opinion alone will never authentically secure such legitimacy Offering an insider's view into the processes of achieving law reform Horder expresses criticism of a system that excludes the vast majority of people from consultation on reform of the laws that govern them

Homicide in Criminal Law Alan Reed, Michael Bohlander, 2018-10-03 This volume presents a leading contribution to the substantive arena relating to homicide in the criminal law In broad terms the ambit of homicide standardisations in extant law is contestable and opaque This book provides a logical template to focus the debate The overall concept addresses three specific elements within this arena embracing an overarching synergy between them This edifice engages in an examination of UK provisions and in contrasting these provisions against alternative domestic jurisdictions as well as comparative contributions addressing a particularised research grid for content The comparative chapters provide a wider background of how other legal systems treat a variety of specialised issues relating to homicide in the context of the criminal law The debate in relation to homicide continues apace for academics practitioners and within the criminal justice system Having expert descriptions of the wider issues surrounding the particular discussion and of other legal systems approaches serves to stimulate and inform that debate This collection will be a major source of reference for future discussion Fault in Homicide Stanley Meng Heong Yeo,1997 Yeo s work examines the laws of England Australia and India pertaining to the fault elements required for the crimes of murder and manslaughter It contends that the Indian laws are superior and suggests a set of draft provisions which could comprise a viable model for reform of the English and Australian laws The work is directly relevant to issues being considered in the development of the Model Criminal Code
