Paine, Heather Y. Paine, 2012-12-06 This is the second edition of a successful title first published in 1983 and now therefore a decade out of date The authors consider the development of the right package for a particular food in a particular market from the point of view of the food technologist the packaging engineer and those concerned with marketing While the original format has been retained the contents have been thoroughly revised to take account of the considerable advances made in recent years in the techniques of food processing packaging and distribution While efficient packaging is even more a necessity for every kind of food whether fresh or processed and is an essential link between the food producer and the consumer the emphasis on its several functions has changed Its basic function is to identify the product and ensure that it travels safely through the distribution system to the consumer Packaging designed and constructed solely for this purpose adds little or nothing to the value of the product merely preserving form or processor freshness or preventing physical damage and cost effectiveness is the sole criterion for success If however the packaging facilitates the use of the product is reusable or has an after use some extra value can be added to justify the extra cost and promote sales Many examples of packaging providing such extra value can be cited over the last decade Laboratory Manual for Food Microbiology William Carroll Frazier, 1968 Rapport Et Documents Présentés À la Septième Consultation D'experts FAO Sur la Technologie Du Poisson en Afrique, Saly-Mbour, République Du Sénégal, 10-12 Décembre 2001 Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2005-01-01 This report sets out the recommendations of the 7th expert consultation together with papers presented which was held within the framework of the Co operative Research Programme on Fish Technology in Africa Issues considered relating to post harvest fish utilisation in Africa included fresh fish markets fish processing quality assurance marketing and socio economic issues Compendium of the Microbiological Spoilage of Foods and Beverages William H. Sperber, Michael P. Doyle, 2009-09-23 The increased emphasis on food safety during the past two decades has decreased the emphasis on the loss of food through spoilage particularly in developed countries where food is more abundant In these countries spoilage is a commercial issue that affects the profit or loss of producers and manufacturers In lesser developed countries spoilage continues to be a major concern The amount of food lost to spoilage is not known As will be evident in this text stability and the type of spoilage are influenced by the inherent properties of the food and many other factors During the Second World War a major effort was given to developing the technologies needed to ship foods to different regions of the world without spoilage The food was essential to the military and to populations in countries that could not provide for themselves Since then progress has been made in improved product formulations processing packaging and distribution systems New products have continued to evolve but for many new perishable foods product stability continues to be a limiting factor Many new products have failed to reach the marketplace because of spoilage issues
